CANDIDATES ARE STILL DEADLOCKED ON 93RD BALLOT

LATEST REPORT GIVES McADOO 314; SMITH, 355½ AND RALSTON, 195¼

McADOO AND SMITH REMAIN ADAMANT WHILE LEADERS SWAY

(By United Press) Madison Square Garden, New York July 8.—Six more ballots, bringing the total up to 93 and the democratic national convention is still without a presidential nominee.

With the deadlock still complete, the convention recessed shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon until 9 o'clock this evening, when another effort will be made to select a standard-bearer.

Heads of delegations are now losing patience. The candidates, notably William G. McAdoo and Governor Smith, are adamant. But some of the McAdoo leaders are not so firm as their chief. National committee men and state leaders who have campaigns to make this fall back home in conjunction with the national campaign have just about reached the end of their string. They demand a nomination and steps that will make a nomination possible.

With this situation in mind leaders will gather during the afternoon and early evening in conferences in efforts to agree upon a candidate. The conference will be similar to that held over Sunday when representatives of the leading candidates attempted to agree upon a candidate.

The entire convention is disappointed that there was not a nomination today. It was predicted everywhere. Newton D. Baker, for instance, who might be expected to be informed, declaring he was packed up and ready to leave this afternoon. But the ballot mill ground on, and Senator Sam Ralston of Indiana was brought out for a ride. During the day he carried up to 196½ votes, McAdoo lost ground steadily. Smith merely held his own at 355½.

When adjournment was taken Ralston workers indicated that his full strength had not yet been reached, but if the temper of the convention means anything he will not win the nomination. A bitter fight in the conference room is expected, for some personal ambitions are likely to be trampled on, and if the tramping does not bring a walkout they are likely to be thrown out.

RALSTON DRIVE GETS MANY VOTES

Madison Square Garden, New York July 8, 1 p. m.—The drive for Senator Samuel Ralston as democratic presidential nominee is on. With Missouri, Nevada and Oklahoma swaying to the Ralston column on the 90th ballot today, the Hoosier senator's total vote was raised to 159½ and went up to 196 3-4 on the 92nd ballot. This was the biggest vote that has been cast for any dark horse since the opening of the convention.

Smith slipped out of the 360 class to 354½ on this ballot while William G. McAdoo on the 90th was over the three hundred mark by a margin of only 14.

Wet and Dry Fight
It is now developing into a wet and dry fight. The wet element in the convention is cold on Ralston. Pat Harrison has tried Pennsylvania and Massachusetts for some votes but so far has been unsuccessful in wrestling a single one from these quarters.

McADOO HITS NEW MARK ON THE 88TH BALLOT

Madison Square Garden, New York July 8.—Showing a new loss of 18 votes on the first ballot of the day as compared with the last taken Monday night, William G. McAdoo hit a new low mark on the 88th ballot in the democratic national convention this morning when he polled only 315½ votes. Governor Smith registered 363, still 5 votes short of his record. Leaders on the floor predicted a pickup after this first ballot,

Calvin Coolidge Jr. Succumbs After 6 Day Illness

which was merely a warming up affair calculated to further impress upon McAdoo leaders that their candidate must withdraw or be pushed out.

Senator Ralston of Indiana picked up 6 stray votes as he went along on the 88th ballot as he reached a new high with 98 votes.

The concentration of votes on a dark horse, however, is yet to come. With Iowa voting for Meredith, Kansas for Governor Davis, Oklahoma for Senator Owen and other states scattering, there was still much to be done in tightening up the line.

FIRES BEYOND CONTROL IN TWO COAST FORESTS

San Francisco, July 8.—Fighters are making desperate efforts to fight fires in two national forests.

Two fires are ablaze in the Sequoia national forest and latest reports were that they were out of control. A third fire also said to be beyond control, is burning in the Tahoe national forest.

Of the three fires the one in the Tahoe forest is reported as the worst and is menacing several ranches.

MAN WOUNDED IN SHOOTING AFFRAY AT LITTLE FALLS

PETER BALASKI SHOT IN BREAST AND ARM BY JOE SCHNEIDER

INTOXICATED MAN RESENTS INTERFERENCE WHILE BEATING WIFE

Little Falls, July 8.—Peter Balaski, living on Seventh street, Northeast, had the flesh torn from his right breast and arm late Saturday night, when Joe Schneider, also a resident of Seventh street, aimed a shot gun at him and pulled the trigger, the charge striking Balaski in the chest.

The gunman hid in a potato patch at the rear of his home and was found there by deputy sheriffs who lodged him in jail. He was arraigned on Monday and demanded an examination. The hearing was set for July 29th, bonds being placed at $2,000, which he has not yet furnished.

Balaski was hurried to St. Gabriel's hospital and given medical attention. His condition is not considered serious unless infection should set in. Mrs. Joe Mayrand, a neighbor, who stood half a block distant when the shooting occurred, was struck by stray shot, receiving slight wounds on the arm and head.

According to the story told by both Balaski and Mrs. Mayrand, Schneider was in an intoxicated condition and had been beating his 80-year old wife. When neighbors interfered about eleven o'clock Saturday evening, he had his wife down it is said and pounding her head on the ground.

Balaski states that he pulled Schneider away from his wife, the latter running to the Mayrand home for safety. Schneider rushed into the house returning immediately with the shotgun and crying out in German, "I'm going to kill you" fired point blank at Balaski.

Balaski says that Schneider threatened him about three weeks ago with a 32 calibre revolver. He reported the matter to Judge Randall at that time, but says no action was taken. According to the judge, a warrant was issued, but for some reason the police did not arrest Schneider.

A few minutes before neighbors interfered, Schneider yelled out that he was going to do away with his wife, according to Mrs. Mayrand, and later said that he was going to kill both Mrs. Schneider and himself.

Neighbors sent in two calls to the police department before officers arrived on the scene. It is said, and claim that if the police had answered the first call, the shooting might have been prevented. Sheriff Felix has been notified of the trouble until after the shooting took place.

The following quotation from the Morrison county attorney is clipped from the Little Falls Transcript of Monday:

"Assault and battery cases are predominating in court records a little earlier this year than usual," said County Attorney D. M. Cameron this morning. "Records for many years past show conclusively that hot weather brings a large increase in the number of such cases reported to the authorities, but the majority of such offenses are usually committed in August each year."

Mr. Cameron attributes this to the fact that people are naturally more irritable in warm weather and also that people mingle together, about the streets and otherwise, more generally in the summer time than in the winter. "You can't have a dog fight unless there are at least two dogs," soliloquized Mr. Cameron.

U. S. ARMY FLIERS ARRIVE IN PERSIA

Calcutta, India, July 8.—The United States army airplanes which are flying around the world arrived at Bushire, Persia, yesterday and left after a short stop for Bagdad.

STATE ENJOYS SANE FOURTH SAYS MARSHAL

St. Paul, July 8.—A record in safe and sane celebration of the Fourth of July was set last week. This was revealed, State Fire Marshal H. L. Kingsley said today, in the reports received at his office since that day.

There was almost no accidents or fires due to use of explosives, according to these reports, which are not yet complete, but are in from most sections of the state.

The safe and sane Fourth, Mr. Kingsley believes, is largely due to the campaign by local authorities, and his office, together with the prohibition of the use of explosives in many of the cities and towns.

MUTINY CRUSHED IN BRAZIL ARMY

MARTIAL LAW PUTS DOWN UP-RISING AROUND RIO DE JANEIRO

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, July 8.—A section of the army of the state of Sao Paulo rebelled against its officers early Saturday, seized public buildings and caused considerable excitement before order was restored by federal troops.

The movement apparently started over dissatisfaction at the decision of the Sao Paulo state government to renew its contract for a French military mission, which has been instructing the state's military forces for the last three years.

Troops in several barracks gathered quietly in the early morning seized a number of officers and started a parley with the state government.

The officers, backed by Gov. Carlos de Campos and the federal garrison, refused to yield to the rebels' demands and there was some street fighting.

The federal government, however, has declared martial law in the federal district (Rio de Janeiro and environs), the state of Rio de Janeiro and the state of Sao Paulo.

Rail communication has been taken over by the military and public traffic prohibited. The military also has assumed control of telephone and telegraph communications.

SITUATION GROWS MORE CRITICAL

Rio de Janeiro, July 8.—The situation in Brazil is becoming more critical.

Disturbances are spreading in the disaffected areas and a naval squadron sailed for Santos Monday morning to attempt to re-establish order.

The Journal di Commercio says that a section of the regular army quartered in and about Sao Paulo conspired with state troops to capture the government palace and the governor learned of the movement in time and took the necessary measures to prevent its being carried out, according to the newspaper, which says that the revolutionary activities are a result of a lack of unity of command in the army and adds that the movement is continuing. An official communique says that situation is "unfavorable" and that the battle-ship has radioed from Santos that everything is calm there.

A rigid censorship prevails on messages from Sao Paulo, the storm center, and the government realizes that the impression upon the world created by the revolt will be decidedly unfavorable and is naturally anxious to suppress both the revolutionary and false reports concerning it as rapidly as possible.

Life of Railroad Spikes
The durability of railroad spikes depends entirely on the type of track and traffic hauled; however, heavy spikes should last about fifteen years and light spikes from twenty-one to twenty-five years. For general repairs approximately thirty-six spikes per mile per month may be used.

SEPTIC POISON FROM BLISTER CAUSES DEATH

FIRST TRAGEDY OF THE KIND SINCE TAD LINCOLN DIED

NATION JOINS IN SYMPATHY TO GRIEF STRICKEN PAR-ENTS

(By United Press) Washington, July 8.—The curtains are drawn in the east room at the White House.

The president's younger son lies dead within.

Bowed in grief at the loss of their boy—a tragedy such as has not visited the White House since Abraham Lincoln's day—president and Mrs. Coolidge remained aloof with their sorrow.

Calvin Coolidge, Jr., who succumbed to septic poisoning after a brave fight, will be buried from the Coolidge family home at Plymouth, Vt., according to plans tentatively approved by the president today.

The plan as outlined calls for private services in the east room of the White House tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m., transportation of the body to Northampton, Mass., by special train tomorrow night, services in the Coolidge home at Northampton Thursday and interment thereafter at Plymouth Thursday or Friday. It was emphasized that plans are only tentative and may be changed.

Only those who stood by while the nation's chief executive and his wife walked unsteadily, with haggard faces, from the great Walter Reed military hospital where young Calvin died, saw their fight for composure. Amidst a hush the boy's body was taken to the White House and the Coolidges were shut out from a sympathizing world.

John Coolidge, brother of Calvin, Jr., was with them. The still form in the east room had been the Coolidge family pride—an American boy of 16.

It was only a week ago that septic poisoning set in from a blister on Calvin Junior's foot.

There followed an unparalleled fight to save the boy's life, in which the most important factor was the indomitable courage the patient himself displayed, but without avail.

It is 62 years since Tad Lincoln died in the arms of his father in the White House. Not since then has a president in office lost a son in death.

There was a hush over the executive mansion today. Servants and secret service men moved quietly about, talking only in whispers.

The Coolidges were trying to show as little as possible of their grief. From the first they have felt that the loss of Calvin Junior is their own family affair. So it was not as president and first lady of the land that they mourned, but as a bereaved father and mother, who want to be alone.

Doctors said that they believed Calvin Junior had been sustained longer than they thought possible by his own courage when everyone had given up hope.

Blood transfusions, injections of saline solutions, all the knowledge and skill of medicine failed to help the boy in his fight.

Last night there were signs that death was near. A great crowd of watchers stood with pale faces upturned to the third floor window where the president and the boy's mother stood at his bedside.

E. T. Clark, the president's personal secretary, was the intermediary between the sickroom and the newspapermen who were sending the news to an anxious world.

At 7:55 he brought out word—the boy "is dying," but for nearly three hours more young Calvin clung to life. At 10:33, Clark, his face gray with fatigue and sorrow of the long watch, appeared to say "It is all over."

A few minutes later the parents came down the hospital corridors.

ST. PAUL YOUNG LADY DROWNS IN LAKE ITASCA

Bemidji, July 8.—Miss Eva Smith, St. Paul young lady about 30 years old, was drowned in Lake Itasca Saturday afternoon when a canoe in which she and her sister, Miss Ruth Smith were riding, capsized about half a mile from Douglas Lodge. Miss Eva Smith sank the moment the canoe tipped and was not seen again. Miss Ruth, who is a good swimmer, made her way to shore, a distance of about 40 rods. The accident was witnessed by a large number of tourists on the shore of the lake at Douglas Lodge but who were unable to get to the scene of the accident in time to be of any help.

Dragging contrivances were made hastily and put into use, but it was not until Sunday that the body was recovered. The body was taken to Park Rapids and prepared for shipment to St. Paul. The body was found in about 50 feet of water.

ALLMAN, COMIC ARTIST, DIES

(By United Press) Cleveland, O., July 8.—Walter R. Allman, 42, creator of the newspaper comic strip, "The Doings of the Duffs," died at his home here today after a long illness.

Nurses, doctors and orderlies stood by in military attention, their faces mute with sympathy. The president looked straight before him, his face drawn and pale, his lips compressed, but betraying no other sign of grief.

Mrs. Coolidge leaned heavily on his arm, her head bowed. They entered the president's car, followed by secret service men and members of the staff.

The car proceeded through the dark streets at a slow pace—like a funeral procession. By the time they reached the downtown section newsboys were shouting extras announcing the death.

Leaving the automobile, the president and his wife walked slowly into the White House, Mrs. Coolidge supported by the president and I. N. Hoover, chief White House usherer. As they entered the mansion their son John met them.

Secret service men, secretaries and White House attaches stood with bowed heads in the presence of the grief-stricken parents and brother. Calvin had been a favorite with all who knew him. The tall, somewhat frail boy had an engaging personality which won friends.

The president moved about today as if in a daze, inarticulate as usual, unable, apparently, to give vent to his sorrow, which might obtain him some measure of relief. He was at grips with his agony. His sons had meant much to him. Their training and character building was his first thought.

Throughout the illness of Calvin the president conducted himself with the fortitude of his New England temperament. On the Fourth of July, his own fifty-second birthday, he delivered an address to the National Education convention with rare courage which concealed the fact that his son was already dangerously ill. But after that he made only a pretense of working, his only thought being to do something to occupy his mind.

When the time came to begin his vigil at the hospital, he sustained Mrs. Coolidge and inspired the boy to new efforts. Once, on Saturday night, watchers below saw his form silhouetted against the lighted window of the sickroom. He had just entered to see Calvin after an operation. He stood gazing down in silence at the form of his son.

The blood poisoning from which Calvin died originated from a blister which he wore on the big toe of his right foot while playing tennis at the White House courts last Monday. His tennis shoes were slightly large and he wore no socks. The blister broke, and the way was open to infection.

In boyish fashion, the lad paid no great attention to it. Even after the spot became reddened and angry he attached no importance to it. Thus neglected the poison worked its deadly way into the boy's system.

DELEGATES MAKE DEBS HONORARY COMMITTEE HEAD

WILL BE ACTIVE IN CAMPAIGN IF HEALTH PERMITS

(By United Press) Cleveland, O., July 8.—Eugene V. Debs was named honorary chairman of the national executive committee of the socialist party by the unanimous consent of delegates to the national convention of the party here today.

Debs will act in an ex-officio capacity until his health permits him to return to active participation in the coming campaign of socialists and progressives to elect Senator Robert M. LaFollette president on the independent ticket.

Other members of the executive committee are Morris Hillquit, New York; Joseph W. Sharts, Dayton, O.; attorney; Victor L. Berger, Milwaukee; John W. Collins, Illinois; Leo M. Harkins, N. J.; James Maurer, Pennsylvania; and George E. Roewer, Jr., Massachusetts.

ADMIT THEY KILLED MAN

DRUNKS ROB STRANGER AND HURL HIM INTO RIVER

(Daily Star)

Minneapolis, Minn., July 7.—Still too drunk to talk about the matter intelligently, according to the police, two men giving their names as William Peterson and Charles Ruhl are held in connection with the death of an unidentified man whose body was found in the Mississippi river.

Report of Anthony Toma, a switchman, that he saw two men throw another into the water near the railroad bridge crossing at East Island avenue, was borne out by the finding of the body and the arrest of two men who are said to have admitted, while intoxicated, that they robbed a man and threw him into the river.

G. S. Schroll and John P. Franks, city detectives, made the arrest on descriptions furnished by Toma.

Death of Drowning
Charles A. Hobbs, deputy coroner, pronounced death was due to drowning and promised a post mortem examination.

This statement coincides with that of Toma, who declared that the men were engaged in a scuffle and that the man who died was thrown into the water and swam a few yards before he sank.

Peterson is a small man and is said to have been physically incapable of throwing the man into the river alone.

Ruhl is said to be the son of a prosperous farmer in Pine River and had a bank book in his pocket with $50.

Tattoo Marks on Arm
The dead man is 50 or 55 years old, quite bald and wore overalls, a blue serge coat, blue shirt and tan shoes. He had blue eyes.

Tattoo marks appearing on his arm are relied upon to establish identification. The design of a woman bearing a shield is accompanied by a design of two crossed flags. He had the appearance of a laborer.

"Sugar Trees"
The sugar of the Douglas fir has a decided value from the scientific and chemical point of view, its present price being about $70 per pound. But to most people the chief interest of its discovery lies in the fact that nature has somehow contrived to withhold the secret of the "sugar trees" from man's prying eyes for so long.

PETER BALASKI SHOT IN BREAST AND ARM BY JOE SCHNEIDER

INTOXICATED MAN RESENTS INTERFERENCE WHILE BEATING WIFE

Little Falls, July 8.—Peter Balaski, living on Seventh street, Northeast, had the flesh torn from his right breast and arm late Saturday night, when Joe Schneider, also a resident of Seventh street, aimed a shot gun at him and pulled the trigger, the charge striking Balaski in the chest.

The gunman hid in a potato patch at the rear of his home and was found there by deputy sheriffs who lodged him in jail. He was arraigned on Monday and demanded an examination. The hearing was set for July 29th, bonds being placed at $2,000, which he has not yet furnished.

Balaski was hurried to St. Gabriel's hospital and given medical attention. His condition is not considered serious unless infection should set in. Mrs. Joe Mayrand, a neighbor, who stood half a block distant when the shooting occurred, was struck by stray shot, receiving slight wounds on the arm and head.

According to the story told by both Balaski and Mrs. Mayrand, Schneider was in an intoxicated condition and had been beating his 80-year old wife. When neighbors interfered about eleven o'clock Saturday evening, he had his wife down it is said and pounding her head on the ground.

Balaski states that he pulled Schneider away from his wife, the latter running to the Mayrand home for safety. Schneider rushed into the house returning immediately with the shotgun and crying out in German, "I'm going to kill you" fired point blank at Balaski.

Balaski says that Schneider threatened him about three weeks ago with a 32 calibre revolver. He reported the matter to Judge Randall at that time, but says no action was taken. According to the judge, a warrant was issued, but for some reason the police did not arrest Schneider.

A few minutes before neighbors interfered, Schneider yelled out that he was going to do away with his wife, according to Mrs. Mayrand, and later said that he was going to kill both Mrs. Schneider and himself.

Neighbors sent in two calls to the police department before officers arrived on the scene, it is said, and claim that if the police had answered the first call, the shooting might have been prevented. Sheriff Felix was not notified of the trouble until after the shooting took place.

The following quotation from the Morrison county attorney is clipped from the Little Falls Transcript of Monday:

"Assault and battery cases are predominating in court records a little earlier this year than usual," said County Attorney D. M. Cameron this morning. "Records for many years past show conclusively that hot weather brings a large increase in the number of such cases reported to the authorities, but the majority of such offenses are usually committed in August each year."

Mr. Cameron attributes this to the fact that people are naturally more irritable in warm weather and also that people mingle together, about the streets and otherwise, more generally in the summer time than in the winter. "You can't have a dog fight unless there are at least two dogs," soliloquized Mr. Cameron.

STATE ENJOYS SANE FOURTH SAYS MARSHAL

St. Paul, July 8.—A record in safe and sane celebration of the Fourth of July was set last week.

This was revealed, State Fire Marshal B. L. Kingsley said today, in the reports received at his office since that day.

There was almost no accidents or fires due to use of explosives, according to these reports, which are not yet complete, but are in from most sections of the state.

The safe and sane Fourth, Mr. Kingsley believes, is largely due to the campaign by local authorities, and his office, together with the prohibition of the use of explosives in many of the cities and towns.

MUTINY CRUSHED IN BRAZIL ARMY

MARTIAL LAW PUTS DOWN UP-RISING AROUND RIO DE JANEIRO

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, July 8.—A section of the army of the state of Sao Paulo rebelled against its officers early Saturday, seized public buildings and caused considerable excitement before order was restored by federal troops.

The movement apparently started over dissatisfaction at the decision of the Sao Paulo state government to renew its contract for a French military mission, which has been instructing the state's military forces for the last three years.

Troops in several barracks gathered quietly in the early morning seized a number of officers and started a parley with the state government.

The officers, backed by Gov. Carlos de Campos and the federal garrison, refused to yield to the rebels' demands and there was some street fighting.

The federal government, however, has declared martial law in the federal district (Rio de Janeiro and environs), the state of Rio de Janeiro and the state of Sao Paulo.

Rail communication has been taken over by the military and public traffic prohibited. The military also has assumed control of telephone and telegraph communications.

SITUATION GROWS MORE CRITICAL

Rio de Janeiro, July 8.—The situation in Brazil is becoming more critical.

Disturbances are spreading in the disaffected areas and a naval squadron sailed for Santos Monday morning to attempt to re-establish order.

The Journal do Commercio says that a section of the regular army quartered in and about Sao Paulo conspired with state troops to capture the government palace and the governor learned of the movement in time and took the necessary measures to prevent its being carried out, according to the newspaper, which says that the revolutionary activities are a result of a lack of unity of command in the army and adds that the movement is continuing. An official communique says that situation is "unfavorable" and that the battleship has radioed from Santos that everything is calm there.

A rigid censorship prevails on messages from Sao Paulo, the storm center, and the government realizes that the impression upon the world created by the revolt will be decidedly unfavorable and is naturally anxious to suppress both the revolutionary and false reports concerning it as rapidly as possible.

Life of Railroad Spikes

The durability of railroad spikes depends entirely on the type of track and traffic hauled; however, heavy spikes should last about fifteen years and light spikes from twenty-one to twenty-five years. For general repairs approximately thirty-six spikes per mile per month may be used.

SEPTIC POISON FROM BLISTER CAUSES DEATH

FIRST TRAGEDY OF THE KIND SINCE TAD LINCOLN DIED

NATION JOINS IN SYMPATHY TO GRIEF STRICKEN PAR-ENTS

(By United Press)
Washington, July 8.—The curtains are drawn in the east room at the White House.

The president's younger son lies dead within.

Bowed in grief at the loss of their boy—a tragedy such as has not visited the White House since Abraham Lincoln's day—president and Mrs. Coolidge remained aloof with their sorrow.

Calvin Coolidge, Jr., who succumbed to septic poisoning after a brave fight, will be buried from the Coolidge family home at Plymouth, Vt., according to plans tentatively approved by the president today.

The plan as outlined calls for private services in the east room of the White House tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m., transportation of the body to Northampton, Mass., by special train tomorrow night, services in the Coolidge home at Northampton Thursday and interment thereafter at Plymouth Thursday or Friday. It was emphasized that plans are only tentative and may be changed.

Only those who stood by while the nation's chief executive and his wife walked unsteadily, with haggard faces, from the great Walter Reed military hospital where young Calvin died, saw their fight for composure. Amidst a hush the boy's body was taken to the White House and the Coolidges were shut out from a sympathizing world.

John Coolidge, brother of Calvin, Jr., was with them. The still form in the east room had been the Coolidge family pride—an American boy of 16.

It was only a week ago that septic poisoning set in from a blister on Calvin Junior's foot.

There followed an unparalleled fight to save the boy's life, in which the most important factor was the indomitable courage the patient himself displayed, but without avail.

It is 62 years since Tad Lincoln died in the arms of his father in the White House. Not since then has a president in office lost a son in death.

There was a hush over the executive mansion today. Servants and secret service men moved quietly about, talking only in whispers.

The Coolidges were trying to show as little as possible of their grief. From the first they have felt that the loss of Calvin Junior is their own family affair. So it was not as president and first lady of the land that they mourned, but as a bereaved father and mother, who want to be alone.

Doctors said that they believed Calvin Junior had been sustained longer than they thought possible by his own courage when everyone had given up hope.

Blood transfusions, injections of saline solutions, all the knowledge and skill of medicine failed to help the boy in his fight.

Last night there were signs that death was near. A great crowd of watchers stood with pale faces upturned to the third floor window where the president and the boy's mother stood at his bedside.

E. T. Clark, the president's personal secretary, was the intermediary between the sickroom and the newspapermen who were sending the news to an anxious world.

At 7:55 he brought out word—the boy "is dying," but for nearly three hours more young Calvin clung to life. At 10:33, Clark, his face gray with fatigue and sorrow of the long watch, appeared to say "It is all over."

A few minutes later the parents came down the hospital corridors.

ST. PAUL YOUNG LADY DROWNS IN LAKE ITASCA

Bemidji, July 8.—Miss Eva Smith, St. Paul young lady about 30 years old, was drowned in Lake Itasca Saturday afternoon when a canoe in which she and her sister, Miss Ruth Smith were riding, capsized about half a mile from Douglas Lodge. Miss Eva Smith sank the moment the canoe tipped and was not seen again. Miss Ruth, who is a good swimmer, made her way to shore, a distance of about 40 rods. The accident was witnessed by a large number of tourists on the shore of the lake at Douglas Lodge but who were unable to get to the scene of the accident in time to be of any help.

Dragging contrivances were made hastily and put into use, but it was not until Sunday that the body was recovered. The body was taken to Park Rapids and prepared for shipment to St. Paul. The body was found in about 50 feet of water.

ALLMAN, COMIC ARTIST, DIES

(By United Press)
Cleveland, O., July 8.—Walter R. Allman, 42, creator of the newspaper comic strip, "The Doolins of the Duffs," died at his home here today after a long illness.

Nurses, doctors and orderlies stood by in military attention, their faces mute with sympathy. The president looked straight before him, his face drawn and pale, his lips compressed, but betraying no other sign of grief.

Mrs. Coolidge leaned heavily on his arm, her head bowed. They entered the president's car, followed by secret service men and members of the staff.

The car proceeded through the dark streets at a slow pace—like a funeral procession. By the time they reached the downtown section newsboys were shouting extras announcing the death.

Leaving the automobile, the president and his wife walked slowly into the White House, Mrs. Coolidge supported by the president and I. N. Hoover, chief White House usherer. As they entered the mansion their son John met them.

Secret service men, secretaries and White House attaches stood with bowed heads in the presence of the grief-stricken parents and brother. Calvin had been a favorite with all who knew him. The tall, somewhat frail boy had an engaging personality which won friends.

The president moved about today as if in a daze, inarticulate as usual, unable, apparently, to give vent to his sorrow, which might obtain him some measure of relief. He was at grips with his agony. His sons had meant much to him. Their training and character building was his first thought.

Throughout the illness of Calvin the president conducted himself with the fortitude of his New England temperament. On the Fourth of July, his own fifty-second birthday, he delivered an address to the National Education convention with rare courage which concealed the fact that his son was already dangerously ill. But after that he made only a pretense of working, his only thought being to do something to occupy his mind.

When the time came to begin his vigil at the hospital, he sustained Mrs. Coolidge and inspired the boy to new efforts. Once, on Saturday night, watchers below saw his form silhouetted against the lighted window of the sickroom. He had just entered to see Calvin after an operation. He stood gazing down in silence at the form of his son.

The blood poisoning from which Calvin died originated from a blister which he wore on the big toe of his right foot while playing tennis at the White House courts last Monday. His tennis shoes were slightly large and he wore no socks. The blister broke, and the way was open to infection.

In boyish fashion, the lad paid no great attention to it. Even after the spot became reddened and angry he attached no importance to it. Thus neglected the poison worked its deadly way into the boy's system.

(By United Press)
Cleveland, O., July 8.—Eugene V. Debs was named honorary chairman of the national executive committee of the socialist party by the unanimous consent of delegates to the national convention of the party here today.

Debs will act in an ex-officio capacity until his health permits him to return to active participation in the coming campaign of socialists and progressives to elect Senator Robert M. LaFollette president on the independent ticket.

Other members of the executive committee are Morris Hillquit, New York; Joseph W. Sharts, Dayton, O.; attorney; Victor L. Berger, Milwaukee; John W. Collins, Illinois; Leo M. Harkins, N. J.; James Maurer, Pennsylvania, and George E. Roewer, Jr., Massachusetts.

ADMIT THEY KILLED MAN

DRUNKS ROB STRANGER AND HURL HIM INTO RIVER

(Daily Star)

Minneapolis, Minn., July 7.—Still too drunk to talk about the matter intelligently, according to the police, two men giving their names as William Peterson and Charles Ruhl are held in connection with the death of an unidentified man whose body was found in the Mississippi river.

Report of Anthony Toma, a switchman, that he saw two men throw another into the water near the railroad bridge crossing at East Island avenue, was borne out by the finding of the body and the arrest of two men who are said to have admitted, while intoxicated, that they robbed a man and threw him into the river.

G. S. Schroll and John P. Franks, city detectives, made the arrest on descriptions furnished by Toma.

Death of Drowning
Charles A. Hobbs, deputy coroner, pronounced death was due to drowning and promised a post mortem examination.

This statement coincides with that of Toma, who declared that the men were engaged in a scuffle and that the man who died was thrown into the water and swam a few yards before he sank.

Peterson is a small man and is said to have been physically incapable of throwing the man into the river alone.

Ruhl is said to be the son of a prosperous farmer in Pine River and had a bank book in his pocket worth $50.

Tattoo Marks on Arm
The dead man is 50 or 55 years old, quite bald and wore overalls, a blue serge coat, blue shirt and tan shoes. He had blue eyes.

Tattoo marks appearing on his arm are relied upon to establish identification. The design of a woman bearing a shield is accompanied by a design of two crossed flags. He had the appearance of a laborer.

"Sugar Trees"
The sugar of the Douglas fir has a decided value from the scientific and chemical point of view, its present price being about $70 per pound. But to most people the chief interest of its discovery lies in the fact that nature has somehow contrived to withhold the secret of the "sugar trees" from man's prying eyes for so long.

WEDNESDAY'S BAND CONCERT

Mayor Has Been Asked to Police Concerts at Gregory Park to Stop Moving During Music

The weekly band concert will be held at Gregory park on Wednesday evening.

The city council at its meeting Monday night, decided to ask the mayor to police the weekly concerts with four patrolmen, whose duty it shall be to see that motorists who are lined up around the park do not move their automobiles during the playing of a piece.

This annoyance, and also that of children playing about the bandstand, was decreased at last week's concert, through the request made by the band in the columns of the Dispatch.

Director W. R. Hiller announces a very pleasing concert for tomorrow evening, with a good selection of various types of band music. The program in detail follows:

1. March, "Pete Pepper," Watson.
2. Overture, "Panorama," Barnhouse.
3. Foxtrot, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo'."

WEDNESDAY'S BAND CONCERT
Mayor Has Been Asked to Police Concerts at Gregory Park to Stop Moving During Music

The weekly band concert will be held at Gregory park on Wednesday evening.

The city council at its meeting Monday night, decided to ask the mayor to police the weekly concerts with four patrolmen, whose duty it shall be to see that motorists who are lined up around the park do not move their automobiles during the playing of a piece.

This annoyance, and also that of children playing about the bandstand, was decreased at last week's concert, through the request made by the band in the columns of the Dispatch.

Director W. R. Hiller announces a very pleasing concert for tomorrow evening, with a good selection of various types of band music. The program in detail follows:

1. March, "Pete Pepper," Watson.
2. Overture, "Panorama," Barnhouse.
3. Foxtrot, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo'."
4. "Schmeichelkatzchen" (Little Flatterer) Ellinberg.
5. March, "The Elum Eagles" King.
6. Overture, "Hearts of Gold" Barnard.
7. Foxtrot, "Arcady."
8. "Manana Chillon Dance" Jean M. Missud.
9. Selection, "Prince Charming."
10. March, "Fultonaire."
11. Star Spangled Banner.

LAKE OF WOODS IS WONDERLAND

Former Brainerd Girl Writes Interesting Account of Experience in North Country

SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE

Rich in Indian Lore, Scenic Beauty, and Ideal Vacation Spot in Writer's Opinion

Miss Katherine Greene, former resident of Brainerd and now of Breckenridge, Minn., and formerly with the Gazette-Telegram, recently spent a year with her brothers on Lake of the Woods, in the Province of Ontario. The stay was made for the benefit of her health, and she lived an out-door life while there.

While on a visit to Breckenridge with some friends she wrote an article of the North country which is very interesting and also educational.

"The Lake of the Woods is what I believe the geographers call a silted lake. Anyway it is rock-ribbed and bounded, filled with crystal clear water and dotted with thousands of pine-clad islands. When the Laurentian Glacier passed this way thousands of years ago, it gouged from the rocky floor valleys, lakes and river beds. Together with its adjoining lakes it has a water surface of about 2,000 square miles. Naturally the scenic effects are as magnificent as they are varied.

Easy of access, yet practically an unknown country lying northwest of Minnesota and between the provinces of Manitoba and Ontario, Lake of the Woods and vicinity presents a mighty attraction to the tourist and sportsman. A glance at a map will show you that this region is simply a network of lakes connected by small streams or separated by short easy portages, which makes it ideal to the canoeist. It is still wild, only the outlying parts having been opened to settlement. Many of these lakes have never been looked upon by the white man and seldom visited by the Indian. Consequently they abound in fish. Here are found the sturgeon, salmon and speckled trout, muskellunge, whitefish, pike and bass.

The surrounding country, densely wooded, rock-ribbed in places, swampy in others, is the breeding grounds of moose, deer, beaver, bear and wolf, geese, ducks, grouse, partridge and prairie chicken.

The flora is similar to that grown in Minnesota. Of wild fruits, the raspberry, blueberry, strawberry, plum and cherry are perhaps the most abundant and best known.

The pests are also similar to those of our state, being the mosquito and black fly, but they last only a short time, the mosquito having usually disappeared by the last of June. The long summer days and nights are delightfully cool. The sunsets are gorgeous.

This is now the home of one of The First Families of America, the Chippewa Indian. Here he lives in picturesque and primitive fashion. Truly this is the Indian's Happy Hunting Ground on earth and the Sportsman's earthly paradise. While there is more than one entrance to this natural paradise, the most convenient is Rainy River.

A 75 mile run up the Lake of the Woods, among hundreds of islands takes one to their camp on Nestor's Falls. A 15 mile canoe trip through a chain of five lakes takes one to another of our camps on Kishkutea or Height of Land Lake. In the rocky ledge of the portage between Foot Print and Jack-fish lakes are huge sole-shaped impressions believed by the Indian to be the foot-prints of the Indian Noah, Nenipoose and his dog. There are also still visible on the rocks prehistoric paintings of animals.

The summer months afford the best opportunity of seeing big game, for it is then, to get away from the heat and the flies that they come to the water and feed. I have been able to touch a moose with a paddle. As few sportsmen visited this section before the war, moose and deer are plentiful in the fall.

There is not a possibility of anyone being disappointed in a vacation spent on the Lake of the Woods for there is something to appeal to everyone, the person in search of health or a rest as well as the angler, hunter, canoeist or scientist. Tried once the vacationist's paradise becomes a habit.

Miss Greene is now visiting friends in Brainerd.

Always in Danger

House Dress Made for General Wear

Modern Garment Is More Efficient Than "Wrapper" of Long Ago.

Almost unrecognizable as the descendant of the old-fashioned "wrapper," the modern house dress has a place all its own among the "ready-to-wears," notes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star.

But the house dress of today—or, as it is sometimes called, the bungalow apron, the porch dress, the wash dress or the tub dress—is not only more appealing to the eye than the staid old wrapper was; it's much more efficient, too. A "wrapper" which was just what the name implies, something a woman wrapped about her any old way, admittedly had no esthetic value; and it wasn't even utilitarian, for it was sloppy, cumbersome and awkward. The house dress, on the other hand, is not only comfortable and becoming, but fashionable and economical as well.

Since a house dress is made primarily for service, it is well to select a good one that will keep its shape, and will not fade when it is laundered. Gingham is probably the favorite material, for time has shown it to be durable and washable, as well as decidedly wearable. It comes in such a wide variety of colors, both soft and brilliant, and in so many patterns, that you are sure to be able to find what you want.

Two-Piece Dress in Stripes of Green, Tan and Blue.

Apron gingham is a cheap grade, suitable for aprons, and sometimes used for house dresses. It is rather loosely woven, and is likely to shrink badly when washed. Domestic gingham is similar to apron gingham, of about the same price, and are suitable for house dresses. French gingham and zephyr gingham are better grades.

Tissues and volles are other popular house dress materials and of late satin has been much used. It is one of the most charming house dress materials, for it is soft and feminine, as well as inexpensive, and it lends itself well to the little individual touches of embroidery or other handwork which give the plainest frock individuality.

Colors in general are best when bright and cheery. They should, however, be becoming.

Style as well as color and material plays an important part in the house dress. The one-piece slip-on styles are most practical, since they are both easy to put on and easy to launder and iron. But garments need not look "housedressy" just because they are made in this simple style. As a matter of fact, many women go "down town" in their house dresses nowadays, and feel well dressed.

White Popular for Chic Duds for Summer Wear

White has indeed come into its own and some of the most fascinating clothes for summer wear are made entirely of white—white wool coats with ermine collars or neckties of white fox, simple little frocks of crepe de chine and knitted dresses or the one-piece and sweater. An unusual sport coat seen recently was of white wool knitted in fancy stripes that went horizontally across the short garment. The collar and cuffs and bottom of the coat were edged with a wide border of hooked white wool.

Wear Initials on Shoes

Girls, don't wear your heart on your sleeve, put your initial on your shoes. That's the latest fad to lay siege to London and Paris, and which is just being introduced to America. The initials are large, usually plain, of silver, gold, or enamel.

Miss Barbara Whitney and Barklie McKee Henry Leaving Roslyn Church After Society Wedding

The marriage of Mr. Henry and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney at Roslyn, Long Island, marked the union of two notable American families. The bride is a direct descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. The bridegroom is the son of W. Barklie Henry of Philadelphia. Many prominent society folk attended the wedding.

Took Pains to Soothe "Man's" Ruffled Feeling

As anyone knows who has read that brilliant but rather disconcerting novel, "The Way of All Flesh," Samuel Butler was not a slavish admirer of the institution of the family. His own life at home had not been happy, and we remember that in his "Note-Books" he referred to some Biblical character—Melchizedek, was it not?—as a "really happy man—without father, without mother and without descent." But Butler, no more than the rest of us, could get along without affection. He had a few close friends and was most faithful perhaps to the least deserving.

There was a curious relationship between Butler and his man servant, Alfred. What it was like can best be illustrated by a letter that Alfred wrote him in 1891.

"Dear Sir: I hope you arrived quite safe on Tuesday and found your sister well. . . . I have a little complaint to make. You never looked out of the carriage to see me standing on the platform, as I always do. There was I standing in the rain, and you never looked at me.

"Yours truly,

"ALFRED."

On receiving the letter Butler sent an apology by telegram, and Alfred replied:

"Received telegram this morning; thank you. I showed it to Mr. Jones, and he laughed. I forgive you.

"ALFRED."

POTATO GROWERS BUY WAREHOUSE

MOORHEAD PLANT IS 66TH HOUSE TO BE TAKEN OVER BY STATE POTATO GROWERS EXCHANGE

The Wright Potato Warehouse at Moorhead, largest and best equipped storage plant in the Northwest, has been purchased by the Minnesota Potato Growers Exchange. This announcement was made at St. Paul Wednesday by Frank Kiene, president of the organization.

At the same time, it was stated that Leo H. Wright had been appointed director of the association's department of warehousing, grading and inspection.

"In employing Mr. Wright," said Mr. Kiene, "we feel that we have obtained the services of the most practical potato man in the section. He brings to the membership, a vast amount of practical experience, all of which has been acquired during 17 years of close association with the potato marketing problem in Minnesota."

Mr. Wright was employed, Mr. Kiene said, only after the board had considered scores of applicants. "We gave the first consideration to each candidate's knowledge of the potato problem in this state, and it was because of his special fitness in that field that Mr. Wright was given the position," Mr. Kiene said.

Purchase of the Wright storage house gives the association a handling plant which will be used as a reservoir in prompting its orderly marketing program. It has been used largely by speculators for storing potatoes, purchased during the glut season and held for higher prices in the late fall or spring.

It has a capacity of 400 cars and is so constructed as to assure stored potatoes being of the best possible quality at the time of delivery.

The Wright plant was the 66th house taken over by the Exchange. As June ended, storage space had been acquired at Fisher, Lengby, Lancaster, Middle River, Kennedy, Newfolden, Argyle, East Grand Forks, Georgetown, Baker, Callaway, Westbury, Waubesa, Osema, Detroit, Sauk Centre, Browerville, Clarissa, Menasha, Horton, Dorset, Farris, Hines, Parkers Prairie, Forada, Miltona, Braham, Shevlin, Quamba, Jenkins, Mora, Princeton, Stacy, Kerrick, Atkinson, Willow River, Taylors Falls, Beroun, Groningen, Rush City, Cambridge, Shafer, Askov, Isanti, Stanchfield, North Branch, Blackberry, Deer River, Solway, Blackduck, Winger, Red Lake Falls, Richdale, Laporte, Hines, Bronson and Hugo. At several points, where the Exchange membership is unusually heavy, more than one house has been taken over.

The Exchange has divided the state into ten districts, with a warehouse supervisor in charge of each. These superintendents will complete the warehousing program.

FIVE PENSIONED

N. P. Places Brainerd Men on Retired List After Many Years of Faithful Service

After years of faithful service in the employ of the Northern Pacific Railroad, five old timers, were pensioned for the rest of their lives. These faithful and deserving men can now have the needed rest they have so well earned, knowing they have done their duty to the best of their knowledge and belief.

Instead of setting the old alarm clock to awaken them in the early hours of the morning they can rest for another hour or so longer, when after breakfast they will most likely putter around the garden and in general keep the house and grounds in good repair.

The following named men were pensioned by the N. P. R. R., on July 1, 1924: J. B. Lawrence, blacksmith, 513 3rd ave. N. E., in service since March 10, 1891; Alderman John H. Witham, locomotive carpenter, 624 5th st. S. in service Sept. 1, 1894; Henry Rosenberg, machinist, 610 6th st. in service since March 1, 1879; John Kohlhaus, machinist, 1014 Kingwood st. in service since Sept. 25, 1894; Denvid Deepke, carpenter, 110 4th Ave. N. E., in service since July 9, 1903.

But the house dress of today—or, as it is sometimes called, the bungalow apron, the porch dress, the wash dress or the tub dress—is not only more appealing to the eye than the staid old wrapper was; it's much more efficient, too. A "wrapper" which was just what the name implies, something a woman wrapped about her any old way, admittedly had no esthetic value; and it wasn't even utilitarian, for it was sloppy, cumbersome and awkward. The house dress, on the other hand, is not only comfortable and becoming, but fashionable and economical as well.

Since a house dress is made primarily for service, it is well to select a good one that will keep its shape, and will not fade when it is laundered. Gingham is probably the favorite material, for time has shown it to be durable and washable, as well as decidedly wearable. It comes in such a wide variety of colors, both soft and brilliant, and in so many patterns.

Two-Piece Dress in Stripes of Green, Tan and Blue.

that you are sure to be able to find what you want.

Apron gingham is a cheap grade, suitable for aprons, and sometimes used for house dresses. It is rather loosely woven, and is likely to shrink badly when washed. Domestic gingham is similar to apron gingham, of about the same price, and are suitable for house dresses. French gingham and zephyr gingham are better grades.

Tissues and voiles are other popular house dress materials and of late satin has been much used. It is one of the most charming house dress materials, for it is soft and feminine, as well as inexpensive, and it lends itself well to the little individual touches of embroidery or other handwork which give the plainest frock individuality.

Colors in general are best when bright and cheery. They should, however, be becoming.

Style as well as color and material plays an important part in the house dress. The one-piece slip-on styles are most practical, since they are both easy to put on and easy to launder and iron. But garments need not look "house-dressy" just because they are made in this simple style. As a matter of fact, many women go "down town" in their house dresses nowadays, and feel well dressed.

White Popular for Chic Duds for Summer Wear

White has indeed come into its own and some of the most fascinating clothes for summer wear are made entirely of white—white wool coats with ermine collars or neckties of white fox, simple little frocks of crepe de chine and knitted dresses or the one-piece and sweater. An unusual sport coat seen recently was of white wool knitted in fancy stripes that went horizontally across the short garment. The collar and cuffs and bottom of the coat were edged with a wide border of hooked white wool.

Wear Initials on Shoes

Girls, don't wear your heart on your sleeve, put your initial on your shoes. That's the latest fad to lay siege to London and Paris, and which is just being introduced to America. The initials are large, usually plain, of silver, gold, or enamel.

Miss Barbara Whitney and Barklie McKee Henry Leaving Roslyn Church After Society Wedding

The marriage of Mr. Henry and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney at Roslyn, Long Island, marked the union of two notable American families. The bride is a direct descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. The bridegroom is the son of W. Barklie Henry of Philadelphia. Many prominent society folk attended the wedding.

Took Pains to Soothe "Man's" Ruffled Feeling

As anyone knows who has read that brilliant but rather disconcerting novel, "The Way of All Flesh," Samuel Butler was not a slavish admirer of the institution of the family. His own life at home had not been happy, and we remember that in his "Note-Books" he referred to some Biblical character—Melchizedek, was it not?—as a "really happy man—without father, without mother and without descent." But Butler, no more than the rest of us, could get along without affection. He had a few close friends and was most faithful perhaps to the least deserving. There was a curious relationship between Butler and his man servant, Alfred. What it was like can best be illustrated by a letter that Alfred wrote him in 1891.

"Dear Sir; I hope you arrived quite safe on Tuesday and found your sister well. . . . I have a little complaint to make. You never looked out of the carriage to see me standing on the platform, as I always do. There was I standing in the rain, and you never looked at me.

"Yours truly, "ALFRED."

On receiving the letter Butler sent an apology by telegram, and Alfred replied: "Received telegram this morning; thank you. I showed it to Mr. Jones, and he laughed. I forgive you, "ALFRED."

Always in Order

Some one remarks that the greatest memory test of all is to meet a man a year later and remember his pet ailment. Why not try the politician's standard opener, "How's the old complaint?"

POTATO GROWERS BUY WAREHOUSE

HOORHEAD PLANT IS 66TH HOUSE TO BE TAKEN OVER BY STATE POTATO GROWERS EXCHANGE

The Wright Potato Warehouse at Moorhead, largest and best equipped storage plant in the Northwest, has been purchased by the Minnesota Potato Growers Exchange. This announcement was made at St. Paul Wednesday by Frank Kiene, president of the organization.

At the same time, it was stated that Leo H. Wright had been appointed director of the association's department of warehousing, grading and inspection.

"In employing Mr. Wright," said Mr. Kiene, "we feel that we have obtained the services of the most practical potato man in the section. He brings to the membership, a vast amount of practical experience, all of which has been acquired during 17 years of close association with the potato marketing problem in Minnesota."

Mr. Wright was employed, Mr. Kiene said, only after the board had considered scores of applicants. "We gave the first consideration to each candidate's knowledge of the potato problem in this state, and it was because of his special fitness in that field that Mr. Wright was given the position," Mr. Kiene said.

Purchase of the Wright storage house gives the association a handling plant which will be used as a reservoir in prompting its orderly marketing program. It has been used largely by speculators for storing potatoes, purchased during the glut season and held for higher prices in the late fall or spring.

It has a capacity of 400 cars and is so constructed as to assure stored potatoes being of the best possible quality at the time of delivery.

The Wright plant was the 66th house taken over by the Exchange. As June ended, storage space had been acquired at Fisher, Lengby, Lancaster, Middle River, Kennedy, Newfolden, Argyle, East Grand Forks, Georgetown, Baker, Callaway, Westbury, Wanbun, Ogema, Detroit, Sauk Centre, Browerville, Clarissa, Menahga, Horton, Dorset, Farris, Hines, Parkers Prairie, Forada, Milona, Braham, Shevlin, Quamba, Jenkins, Mora, Princeton, Stacy, Kerrick, Atkinson, Willow River, Taylors Falls, Beroun, Groningen, Rush City, Cambridge, Shafer, Askov, Isanti, Stanchfield, North Branch, Blackberry, Deer River, Solway, Blackduck, Winger, Red Lake Falls, Richdale, Laporte, Hines, Brounson and Hugo. At several points, where the Exchange membership is unusually heavy, more than one house has been taken over.

The Exchange has divided the state into ten districts, with a warehouse supervisor in charge of each. These superintendents will complete the warehousing program.

FIVE PENSIONED

N. P. Places Brainerd Men on Retired List After Many Years of Faithful Service

After years of faithful service in the employ of the Northern Pacific Railroad, five old timers were pensioned for the rest of their lives. These faithful and deserving men can now have the needed rest they have so well earned, knowing they have done their duty to the best of their knowledge and belief.

Instead of setting the old alarm clock to awaken them in the early hours of the morning they can rest for another hour or so longer, when after breakfast they will most likely putter around the garden and in general keep the house and grounds in good repair.

The following named men were pensioned by the N. P. R. R., on July 1, 1924: J. B. Lawrence, blacksmith, 513 3rd ave. N. E., in service since March 10, 1891; Alderman John H. Witham, locomotive carpenter, 624 5th st. S. in service Sept. 1, 1894; Henry Rosenberg, machinist, 610 6th st. in service since March 1, 1879; John Kohlaus, machinist, 1014 Kingwood st. in service since Sept. 25, 1894; Denvide Deepke, carpenter, 110 4th Ave. N. E., in service since July 9, 1903.

A PRACTICAL DREAM

It has been urged that Brainerd be made distinctive by its residents through the growing of flowers. That is, that every property owner plant flowers so that the effect would be impressive. This would necessitate that there be concerted action as to the flowers grown, for the effectiveness of the plan would be in the fact that the flowers in bloom at any one time be of the same kind. This would command attention.

The peony and garden flower show last week revealed a large interest in flowers and makes it seem possible to carry out some scheme which would make Brainerd distinctive as a flower city.

Collections of peonies embracing three or four roots of standard varieties may be had from one to five dollars for the collection. This would place them within the reach of everyone.

Should the proposed organization of flower lovers take this up and the city be canvassed, the dream could doubtless be realized. Imagine the effect when these peonies bloom. A great show could be staged. Peonies could be had in profusion. A parade could be held. People would be attracted for miles, and Brainerd could command attention such as few cities have at a very little cost.

Witness the interest in the city of Portland, Oregon, with their roses. It advertises their city far and wide, and it makes one think favorably of the city as a resident city.

Brainerd can grow peonies successfully and why not use them to make our city famous? It is a practical proposition which can be accomplished with less effort than a Boy Scout or a Better Sires "drive."

THE DAWES PLAN

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has wisely decided that the United States should be represented in the conference of allied premiers which will meet July 16th to consider ways and means for putting into effect the Dawes plan.

As the White House statement tersely says: "It is the desire of the administration that the Dawes plan should be put into effect as speedily as possible. This is the first essential step to economic recovery abroad in which this country is vitally interested. Ambassador will be present for the purpose of dealing with such matters as affect the interests of the United States, and otherwise for purposes of information."

The Dawes plan is economic. The committee of experts headed by General Dawes had nothing to do with political questions and made no recommendations thereon. The plan provides a method of restoring German productivity, stabilizing German currency, and insuring reparation payments. If this can be accomplished, Europe will soon be a heavy consumer of American products, and the nations owing war debts to this country will be in a position to begin payments on principal and interest. These payments will enable congress to further reduce taxes. Thus with stimulated exports and reduced taxes, the United States will be directly and powerfully benefitted by the execution of the Dawes plan.

A REAL JUBILEE EDITOR

THOSE who know and love Frank A. Day, who have been entertained by his brilliancy and his iconoclasm, his originality, and his pungent paragraphs, never considered him as the real veteran editor of Minnesota. Even when we learn that he started the Fairmont Sentinel on July 3, 1874, it seems almost incredible that he has been its editor for fifty years, because he has the spirit and the punch of youth, along with its hopes and opportunism.

But the finger of time writes on, and Frank in the next half century will be given to feel the load of old age. But it will not affect his heart or his spirit. They are of youth eternal.

Brother Day has filled a big place in the history of the state. He has been lawmaker, political boss, a real leader, and a most lovable chap.

May the future years deal kindly with him, and may the people of his beautiful Fairmont, which he has supported so loyally for half a century, appreciate one who has been so long in their midst, and who sang its charms with the eloquence of a Beecher.—St. Cloud Journal Press.

EVIDENTLY a Democratic convention is not of as much interest as a world's series. We see no dissertations by Ring Lardner and other great lights. At the San Francisco convention four years ago, Ring fell heir to a fractional vote for the presidency. However, it didn't amount to much and he lost it in the next shuffle of the ballot.

THE man who drives a car while under the influence of moonshine is a potential murderer, and the law should be changed to treat him as such. Until such time the public has a right to expect that judges considering such cases will give the public such protection as they can by giving offenders the extreme penalty now provided.

IF the democratic delegates to the national convention have even just a little sense, or any idea of the fitness of things today, they will proceed to ditch Smith and his booze cohorts and McAdoo with the flavor of oil and his hooded supporters. If they don't the voters will attend to it in no uncertain way in November.

WHATEVER chance of success the democratic party may have had at winning the election for president this fall has gone glimmering by the unscrupulous, undignified and wholly selfish scramble of the various candidates for the nomination.

THE sympathy of the public goes out to President and Mrs. Coolidge in their great grief over the very serious illness of their son, and all fervently hope and pray that they may be spared his loss.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE, with his usual unselfishness, in his address to his Cleveland adherents, offers to sacrifice himself to save the country. Bob always was a self-sacrificing cuss—for office.

Holland Cows Always Well Taken Care Of

Cows in Holland are treated with as much consideration as human beings. They have the best of food. Their sheds are furnished. They even have overcoats when they go out.

There are lace curtains in the windows of many Dutch cowsheds. And the floors are laid with shining white tiles, kept spotlessly clean.

Let her tail should drag in the dirt, the Dutch cow has it held up by a neat chain from the roof. Her horns are scrubbed and polished. She is carefully groomed, says a writer in the London Mail.

As she spends eight months of the year indoors, perhaps these comforts are necessary. To lighten the darkness of winter the cowshed is provided with electric light. There is also some kind of heating system.

The Dutch spring is generally very cold and windy. Therefore, when the lucky Dutch cow is turned out to graze in May she is well wrapped up. The pampered animal must not catch cold. Everything, from the shining milk pails to the beautifully carved milking stools, is as clean as it is humanly possible to make it.

There is a farm in Holland where pigs are kept—and where each pig has a sort of little bathroom attached to its sty.

Candles Play Big Part in Chinese Ceremony

While both domestic-made and imported candles are extensively sold in China, their uses by the Chinese are distinct. The imported candle is preferred for illumination and it is almost exclusively used for this purpose.

The Chinese-made product, unlike the foreign candle, which is usually white, comes in a variety of shapes, sizes and colors, red being the most general, says the Detroit News. The red candle is used for ceremonial purposes, at weddings and at other gala events.

In recent years foreign candles stained red have been imported to aid in filling the demand at what is perhaps the world's greatest candle-burning event, the Chinese New Year. Those of plain white take their place in funeral ceremonies at the death of elderly persons and those of light blue or green are to be seen at funeral services held for younger persons.

At weddings candles decorated with wax flowers are used, as well as others made into figures of the dragon and the phoenix propitiating signs for a newly married couple. In these the wick is made of reeds or grass.

Push Clouds Aside

The fabled performances of the old woman of the nursery rhyme who was able to "sweep the cobwebs out of the sky" has a scientific parallel in the ability of aviators under some conditions to brush small clouds out of the sky by repeatedly flying through them. A fair-sized summer cumulus or fair weather cloud may sometimes be obliterated by about twenty flights through it. While there is no adequate explanation for this effect, it is thought to be due to a combination of the stirring effect of the plane and especially of the propeller, the carrying into the cloud of warmer, unsaturated air, and the warming of the air in the cloud by the compression effect of the swiftly-moving plane. The method works only when the clouds are about stationary in size, and falls when conditions are such that they are growing rapidly.

Beauty of the Himalayas

There is a great picture of natural beauty waiting the fearless mountain climber who tramps the eight thousand feet up the side of the Himalayas in the late spring, asserts a returned traveler, who says the altitude and climate conditions cause the rhododendron to grow to abnormal size, reaching the size of small trees.

The entire growth is covered with brilliant scarlet and pink blossoms, so abundant one may gaze over scores of square miles, every bit of surface where growth is possible being covered by this wonderful floral display, the color growing more delicate as one goes higher up the mountainside.—Ohio State Journal.

Honey From Haiti

Haitian honey is well liked by the American market. The best is made from the blossoms of the logwood tree and is known as "Campeche" honey. The superior flavor of this product is much appreciated in France, where it has always brought a higher price than in the United States. The honey is nearly white in color and possesses a delicate quality. The beekeepers allow their charges to feed upon royal palms and logwood trees, thus producing a blended and desirable yield. Objections are made that some producers gather it before it is ripe, pack it badly and sometimes let it be mixed with bees and wax.

Number of Languages

Living languages number about 800. This does not include the thousands of dialects and "near" languages. The difficulty in computing the number of languages in the world is to decide just exactly what is meant by the word "language." Linguists are far from being agreed as to when a form of speech ceases to be a "dialect" and becomes a language. Roughly, the 800 languages are distributed as follows: Europe, 89; Asia, 123; Africa, 14; America, 117; islands of the Pacific and Indian oceans, 417.

Zebra Mongoose Has Almost Human Speech

One of the most wonderful attributes of zebra mongooses is their copious verbiage. They dispose of so many different sounds, uttered in so great a variety of intonations, and with such convincing expressiveness, of joy, of sorrow, of expectation, of longing, of desire, of surprise, of anxiety and fear, that it amounts to a language.

Unlike any other mammals known to me, they converse at a distance, even when they are out of sight of one another, as, for instance, when they happen to be in two different rooms.

They often talk in their sleep, and Rikki-Tikki (the writer's male mongoose) from time to time, gave vent, while sound asleep, to an endless lament, a series of long drawn though not unharmonious wails in a rising and falling cadence, expressive of heartrending sorrow and distress, painful to listen to in the silence of the night.

Yet another curious peculiarity of theirs is, that they look, intently, and with evident interest, at stretches of country lying in front of them, when they find themselves at the top of a hill or of a mountain where they have not previously been. Their eyesight is marvelously sharp, and they detect birds of prey—the only thing in the world which they fear, apart from leopards and servals—at incredible altitudes in the sky.—Hans Condenhove in the Atlantic Monthly.

Good Detective Work on Part of Chemist

An epidemic of abusive anonymous letters broke out in a small suburban town near Albany recently. The town's chief of police finding he was making no progress in his investigations, enlisted the aid of consulting a chemist interested in curious problems of crime susceptible to scientific detection.

Scrutiny of a hundred or more of the letters convinced the scientist the unknown writer was a middle-aged woman, says Capper's Weekly. All kinds of writing paper were used, but always a sharp-pointed steel pen and the same kind of ink.

Dust in the ink indicated an open ink-well was used by the writer. At this point the chemist made up a lot of pellets, using a different chemical for each, but every chemical capable of identification if mixed with ink. Then, in the guise of an inspector of electric wiring, the chemist gained access to the houses of all suspects. Whenever he found an open ink-well he dropped a pellet in it.

The next anonymous letter led him to the woman responsible for it. And in a few days she was trapped in the act of sending off another one. That ended the case in a regular Sherlock Holmes style.

Old Income Taxes

There were state income-tax laws in colonial days and diverse federal income-tax laws were enacted by congress during the Civil war time, but in 1894 congress made its first attempt to provide a permanent and substantial income-tax law.

The first successful attempt to provide a federal income tax was in 1909, says the Detroit News, when congress passed a law for the purpose of placing a tax against corporations, but which was in fact a tax against the entire net income of corporations amounting to more than $5,000 a year.

This law was succeeded by the 1913 income law and the Sixteenth amendment to the Constitution empowered congress to pass income-tax laws as we know them today.

"GAS TAX PERSON"

Nickles N. Dimes to Arrive Next Week to Help Speed up State's Good Road Program

Nickles N. Dimes, a nationally known power in highway construction and other public and private enterprises, already successful in many states and fast extending operations for purely public benefit, is scheduled to arrive next week to push a plan to speed the Minnesota good roads program.

To the Nickles N. Dimes plan is credited new highway records in every state where it has been inaugurated—for the improvement of thousands of miles of public roads. It is reported the same that has built many great private fortunes and is now turned to public benefit. The principle is to take a little money at a time from a lot of people and with the big sum thus accumulating to build many important and needed highway betterments, not to be as easily financed by any other method. It favors people within the state over those from the outside, yet the latter do not object to it.

From states now using the plan come reports that it is highly popular with all classes and especially load users—automobile owners, farmers and others. Every Minnesota car and truck owner backing the Nickles N. Dimes plan at an average of $8 a year is promised the use of extra highway improvements representing an outlay of 500,000 times that amount and assured a direct cash-in-pocket return of $3 for every $1 put in.

Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, and every road user well informed on highway facts, it is predicted, will welcome the celebrated Nickles N. Dimes plan. It is popular wherever in effect and many states have doubled compensation for a corresponding increase in operations.

Nickles N. Dimes is the "gas tax person," paid at filling stations and enjoying great popularity in 36 states, as may have been surmised, and he may have more to say next week about gas taxes and things.

At the next session of the Milford mine accident probe committee, starting Friday, July 11, four practical miners will accompany the members on an investigation of conditions of the bog, where the fatal cave-in occurred. At the two-day session closing late Saturday afternoon, arrangements were made to that end. M. Ryan of Trommald, who lost a son in the mine, will be one of the four.

At the session Saturday Engineer Frank Plut of the Milford mine testified as to his duties at the mine and the general condition of the mine. Other witnesses called were E. C. Thompson and M. Ryan, former employees of the mine, and two widows.

A PRACTICAL DREAM

It has been urged that Brainerd be made distinctive by its residents through the growing of flowers. That is, that every property owner plant flowers so that the effect would be impressive. This would necessitate that there be concerted action as to the flowers grown, for the effectiveness of the plan would be in the fact that the flowers in bloom at any one time be of the same kind. This would command attention.

The peony and garden flower show last week revealed a large interest in flowers and makes it seem possible to carry out some scheme which would make Brainerd distinctive as a flower city. Collections of peonies embracing three or four roots of standard varieties may be had from one to five dollars for the collection. This would place them within the reach of everyone.

Should the proposed organization of flower lovers take this up and the city be canvassed, the dream could doubtless be realized. Imagine the effect when these peonies bloom. A great show could be staged. Peonies could be had in profusion. A parade could be held. People would be attracted for miles, and Brainerd could command attention such as few cities have at a very little cost.

Witness the interest in the city of Portland, Oregon, with their roses. It advertises their city far and wide, and it makes one think favorably of the city as a resident city.

Brainerd can grow peonies successfully and why not use them to make our city famous? It is a practical proposition which can be accomplished with less effort than a Boy Scout or a Better Sires "drive."

THE DAWES PLAN

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has wisely decided that the United States should be represented in the conference of allied premiers which will meet July 16th to consider ways and means for putting into effect the Dawes plan.

As the White House statement tersely says: "It is the desire of the administration that the Dawes plan should be put into effect as speedily as possible. This is the first essential step to economic recovery abroad in which this country is vitally interested. Ambassador will be present for the purpose of dealing with such matters as affect the interests of the United States, and otherwise for purposes of information."

The Dawes plan is economic. The committee of experts headed by General Dawes had nothing to do with political questions and made no recommendations thereon. The plan provides a method of restoring German productiveness, stabilizing German currency, and insuring reparation payments. If this can be accomplished, Europe will soon be a heavy consumer of American products, and the nations owing war debts to this country will be in a position to begin payments on principal and interest. These payments will enable congress to further reduce taxes. Thus with stimulated exports and reduced taxes, the United States will be directly and powerfully benefited by the execution of the Dawes plan.

A REAL JUBILEE EDITOR

THOSE who know and love Frank A. Day, who have been entertained by his brilliancy and his iconoclasm, his originality, and his pungent paragraphs, never considered him as the real veteran editor of Minnesota. Even when we learn that he started the Fairmont Sentinel on July 3, 1874, it seems almost incredible that he has been its editor for fifty years, because he has the spirit and the punch of youth, along with its hopes and opportunism.

But the finger of time writes on, and Frank in the next half century will be given to feel the load of old age. But it will not affect his heart or his spirit. They are of youth eternal.

Brother Day has filled a big place in the history of the state. He has been lawmaker, political boss, a real leader, and a most lovable chap.

May the future years deal kindly with him, and may the people of his beautiful Fairmont, which he has supported so loyally for half a century, appreciate one who has been so long in their midst, and who sang its charms with the eloquence of a Beecher.—St. Cloud Journal Press.

EVIDENTLY a Democratic convention is not of as much interest as a world's series. We see no dissertations by Ring Lardner and other great lights. At the San Francisco convention four years ago, Ring fell heir to a fractional vote for the presidency. However, it didn't amount to much and he lost it in the next shuffle of the ballot.

THE man who drives a car while under the influence of moonshine is a potential murderer, and the law should be changed to treat him as such. Until such time the public has a right to expect that judges considering such cases will give the public such protection as they can by giving offenders the extreme penalty now provided.

IF the democratic delegates to the national convention have even just a little sense, or any idea of the fitness of things today, they will proceed to ditch Smith and his booze cohorts and McAdoo with the flavor of oil and his hooded supporters. If they don't the voters will attend to it in no uncertain way in November.

WHATEVER chance of success the democratic party may have had at winning the election for president this fall has gone glimmering by the unscrupulous, undignified and wholly selfish scramble of the various candidates for the nomination.

THE sympathy of the public goes out to President and Mrs. Coolidge in their great grief over the very serious illness of their son, and all fervently hope and pray that they may be spared his loss.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE, with his usual unselfishness, in his address to his Cleveland adherents, offers to sacrifice himself to save the country. Bob always was a self-sacrificing cuss—for office.

Holland Cows Always Well Taken Care Of

Cows in Holland are treated with as much consideration as human beings. They have the best of food. Their sheds are furnished. They even have overcoats when they go out.

There are lace curtains in the windows of many Dutch cowsheds. And the floors are laid with shining white tiles, kept spotlessly clean.

Lest her tail should drag in the dirt, the Dutch cow has it held up by a neat chain from the roof. Her horns are scrubbed and polished. She is carefully groomed, says a writer in the London Mail.

As she spends eight months of the year indoors, perhaps these comforts are necessary. To lighten the darkness of winter the cowshed is provided with electric light. There is also some kind of heating system.

The Dutch spring is generally very cold and windy. Therefore, when the lucky Dutch cow is turned out to graze in May she is well wrapped up. The pampered animal must not catch cold. Everything, from the shining milk pails to the beautifully carved milking stools, is as clean as it is humanly possible to make it.

There is a farm in Holland where pigs are kept—and where each pig has a sort of little bathroom attached to its etc.

Candles Play Big Part in Chinese Ceremony

While both domestic-made and imported candles are extensively sold in China, their uses by the Chinese are distinct. The imported candle is preferred for illumination and it is almost exclusively used for this purpose.

The Chinese-made product, unlike the foreign candle, which is usually white, comes in a variety of shapes, sizes and colors, red being the most general, says the Detroit News. The red candle is used for ceremonial purposes, at weddings and at other gala events.

In recent years foreign candles stained red have been imported to aid in filling the demand at what is perhaps the world's greatest candle-burning event, the Chinese New Year. Those of plain white take their place in funeral ceremonies at the death of elderly persons and those of light blue or green are to be seen at funeral services held for younger persons.

At weddings candles decorated with wax flowers are used, as well as others made into figures of the dragon and the phoenix propitious signs for a newly married couple. In these the wick is made of reeds or grass.

Push Clouds Aside

The fabled performances of the old woman of the nursery rhyme who was able to "sweep the cobwebs out of the sky" has a scientific parallel in the ability of aviators under some conditions to brush small clouds out of the sky by repeatedly flying through them. A fair-sized summer cumulus or fair weather cloud may sometimes be obliterated by about twenty flights through it. While there is no adequate explanation for this effect, it is thought to be due to a combination of the stirring effect of the plane and especially of the propeller, the carrying into the cloud of warmer, unsaturated air, and the warming of the air in the cloud by the compression effect of the swiftly-moving plane. The method works only when the clouds are about stationary in size, and falls when conditions are such that they are growing rapidly.

Beauty of the Himalayas

There is a great picture of natural beauty waiting the fearless mountain climber who tramps the eight thousand feet up the side of the Himalayas in the late spring, asserts a returned traveler, who says the altitude and climate conditions cause the rhododendron to grow to abnormal size, reaching the size of small trees.

The entire growth is covered with brilliant scarlet and pink blossoms, so abundant one may gaze over scores of square miles, every bit of surface where growth is possible being covered by this wonderful floral display, the color growing more delicate as one goes higher up the mountainside.—Ohio State Journal.

Honey From Haiti

Haitian honey is well liked by the American market. The best is made from the blossoms of the logwood tree and is known as "Campeche" honey. The superior flavor of this product is much appreciated in France, where it has always brought a higher price than in the United States. The honey is nearly white in color and possesses a delicate quality. The beekeepers allow their charges to feed upon royal palms and logwood trees, thus producing a blended and desirable yield. Objections are made that some producers gather it before it is ripe, pack it badly and sometimes let it be mixed with bees and wax.

Number of Languages

Living languages number about 800. This does not include the thousands of dialects and "new" languages. The difficulty in computing the number of languages in the world is to decide just exactly what is meant by the word "language." Linguists are far from being agreed as to when a form of speech ceases to be a "dialect" and becomes a language. Roughly, the 800 languages are distributed as follows: Europe, 89; Asia, 123; Africa, 14; America, 117; islands of the Pacific and Indian oceans, 417.

Zebra Mongoose Has Almost Human Speech

One of the most wonderful attributes of zebra mongooses is their copious verbiage. They dispose of so many different sounds, uttered in so great a variety of intonations, and with such convincing expressiveness, of joy, of sorrow, of expectation, of longing, of desire, of surprise, of anxiety and fear, that it amounts to a language.

Unlike any other mammals known to me, they converse at a distance, even when they are out of sight of one another, as, for instance, when they happen to be in two different rooms.

They often talk in their sleep, and Rikki-Tikki (the writer's male mongoose) from time to time, gave vent, while sound asleep, to an endless lament, a series of long drawn though not unharmonious wails in a rising and falling cadence, expressive of heartrending sorrow and distress, painful to listen to in the silence of the night.

Yet another curious peculiarity of theirs is, that they look, intently, and with evident interest, at stretches of country lying in front of them, when they find themselves at the top of a hill or of a mountain where they have not previously been. Their eyesight is marvelously sharp, and they detect birds of prey—the only thing in the world which they fear, apart from leopards and servals—at incredible altitudes in the sky.—Hans Coudenhove in the Atlantic Monthly.

Good Detective Work on Part of Chemist

An epidemic of abusive anonymous letters broke out in a small suburban town near Albany recently. The town's chief of police finding he was making no progress in his investigations, enlisted the aid of consulting a chemist interested in curious problems of crime susceptible to scientific detection.

Scrutiny of a hundred or more of the letters convinced the scientist the unknown writer was a middle-aged woman, says Capper's Weekly. All kinds of writing paper were used, but always a sharp-pointed steel pen and the same kind of ink.

Dust in the ink indicated an open ink-well was used by the writer. At this point the chemist made up a lot of pellets, using a different chemical for each, but every chemical capable of identification if mixed with ink. Then, in the guise of an inspector of electric wiring, the chemist gained access to the houses of all suspects. Whenever he found an open ink-well he dropped a pellet in it.

The next anonymous letter led him to the woman responsible for it. And in a few days she was trapped in the act of sending off another one. That ended the case in a regular Sherlock Holmes style.

Old Income Taxes

There were state income-tax laws in colonial days and diverse federal income-tax laws were enacted by congress during the Civil war time, but in 1894 congress made its first attempt to provide a permanent and substantial income-tax law.

The first successful attempt to provide a federal income tax was in 1909, says the Detroit News, when congress passed a law for the purpose of placing a tax against corporations, but which was in fact a tax against the entire net income of corporations amounting to more than $5,000 a year.

This law was succeeded by the 1913 income law and the Sixteenth amendment to the Constitution empowered congress to pass income-tax laws as we know them today.

"GAS TAX PERSON"

Nickles N. Dimes to Arrive Next Week to Help Speed up State's Good Road Program

Nickles N. Dimes, a nationally known power in highway construction and other public and private enterprises, already successful in many states and fast extending operations for purely public benefit, is scheduled to arrive next week to push a plan to speed the Minnesota good roads program.

To the Nickles N. Dimes plan is credited new highway records in every state where it has been inaugurated—for the improvement of thousands of miles of public roads.

It is reported the same that has built many great private fortunes and is now turned to public benefit. The principle is to take a little money at a time from a lot of people and with the big sum thus accumulating to build many important and needed highway betterments, not to be as easily financed by any other method. It favors people within the state over those from the outside, yet the latter do not object to it.

load users—automobile owners, farmers and others. Every Minnesota car and truck owner backing the Nickles N. Dimes plan at an average of $8 a year is promised the use of extra highway improvements representing an outlay of 500,000 times that amount and assured a direct cash-in-pocket return of $3 for every $1 put in.

Chaires M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, and every road user well informed on highway facts, it is predicted, will welcome the celebrated Nickles N. Dimes plan. It is popular wherever in effect and many states have doubled compensation for a corresponding increase in operations.

Nickles N. Dimes is the "gas tax person," paid at filling stations and enjoying great popularity in 36 states, as may have been surmised, and he may have more to say next week about gas taxes and things.

BOG AT MILFORD MINE WILL BE PROBED SOON

At the next session of the Milford mine accident probe committee, starting Friday, July 11, four practical miners will accompany the members on an investigation of conditions of the bog, where the fatal cave-in occurred. At the two-day session closing late Saturday afternoon, arrangements were made to that end. M. Ryan of Trommald, who lost a son in the mine, will be one of the four.

At the session Saturday Engineer Frank Plut of the Milford mine testified as to his duties at the mine and the general condition of the mine. Other witnesses called were E. C. Thompson and M. Ryan, former employees of the mine, and two widows.

Dorothy Was Sunshine to Them

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"O H, MOTHER, summer's come," exclaimed Dorothy, as she put on her hat to go into the village. "Isn't it good to be alive in summer-time!"

"When you're young you feel that way," her mother answered.

"I bet everybody in the place is feeling that way," answered Dorothy.

Old Saylor, the village money-lender, was talking with Ransom at the gate of his little garden.

"I'm only asking for a three months' extension," pleaded Ransom. "The wife's been sick, and I'll lose everything if you foreclose. Give me three months and I swear I'll pay you."

"Words don't make money," growled Saylor. "I've heard those tales before. I—"

"Good-morning, Mr. Saylor!" called Dorothy as she passed. "Doesn't it make you feel good to be alive this fine weather?"

"I dunno," growled old Saylor, as if the idea was a wholly new one to him.

"Oh, it's just fine, and everybody looks so happy after the cold spring," Dorothy sang out. "I tell you, Mr. Saylor, life's one grand sweet song these summer days."

She was gone tripping down the road, and the two men looked after her.

"Just three months more, Mr. Saylor—" pleaded Ransom. "I'll have that money for sure."

"Well, come inside and we'll talk it over," Saylor growled.

Further along the street John Benson was starting for the city. His wife had accompanied him to the gate.

"John, for heaven's sake think it over!" she was pleading tearfully. "We haven't got along well together, I know, and it's been mostly my fault. But I'll try. Give me another chance. We can learn to rub together—"

John Benson looked at her implacably. God, how tired he was of the woman's nagging and scolding! Their quarrel that morning had culminated in the open talk of separation.

"Good-morning, folks!" Dorothy sang out. "Doesn't it make you feel just happy to be alive this beautiful morning?"

They looked at her aghast; neither of them had thought of the morning.

"How's the garden coming on, Mrs. Benson? Are you going in for sweet-peas this year? I guess you and Mr. Ransom will have a great time enjoying your flowers."

She tripped on her way. They stood at the gate, staring after her. John Benson turned to his wife, "Polly," he began, with a softened expression on his face.

She put her arms round his neck. "We mustn't think of parting. We must try again, dear," she whispered.

They kissed, and he went happily down the street. Round the corner was the shop of old Jenks, the crabbed old carpenter. As Dorothy drew near she saw that the old man had a wriggling boy by the collar—his little grandson, Johnny.

"I'll learn ye to play hookey!" he was snarling.

"Oh, Mr. Jenks, whatever is the matter?" cried Dorothy, coming to a stop before the old man's door. "You're not going to beat Johnny, are you?"

"I'm going to learn him not to play hookey no more, and I guess that ain't nothing better nor a strap," snarled old Jenks. "Fishing with a pin in the water company's reservoir all yesterday, he was, when we thought he was in school."

"Why, Mr. Jenks!" She caught at the strap in the old man's hand. "Look, Mr. Jenks, what a fine day it is. Summer's here at last. Didn't you ever play hookey and go fishing on days like this, when you were a kid?"

Gradually a reminiscent smile stole over the old man's face. "Wal, I reckon boys ain't much different now to what they was in my days," he muttered. "I was kinder forgetting. You run away, Johnny, and don't you play hookey agen, or I'll whale the life out of you!" he said.

Johnny dived to freedom. With a nod and a smile Dorothy continued on her way.

"I guess most everybody's glad to be alive on a fine morning like this," she soliloquized.

Immense Birds' Nests

A little bird no bigger than a canary builds a nest as big as a house, says London Tit-Bits. This is in South Africa, where birds are very sociable. They live in large colonies, the members of which all build in the same tree.

Each couple contrives a nest of mud, joining its walls to those of its neighbor. As the colonies consist of several thousands of birds, the feathered town soon reaches very respectable proportions.

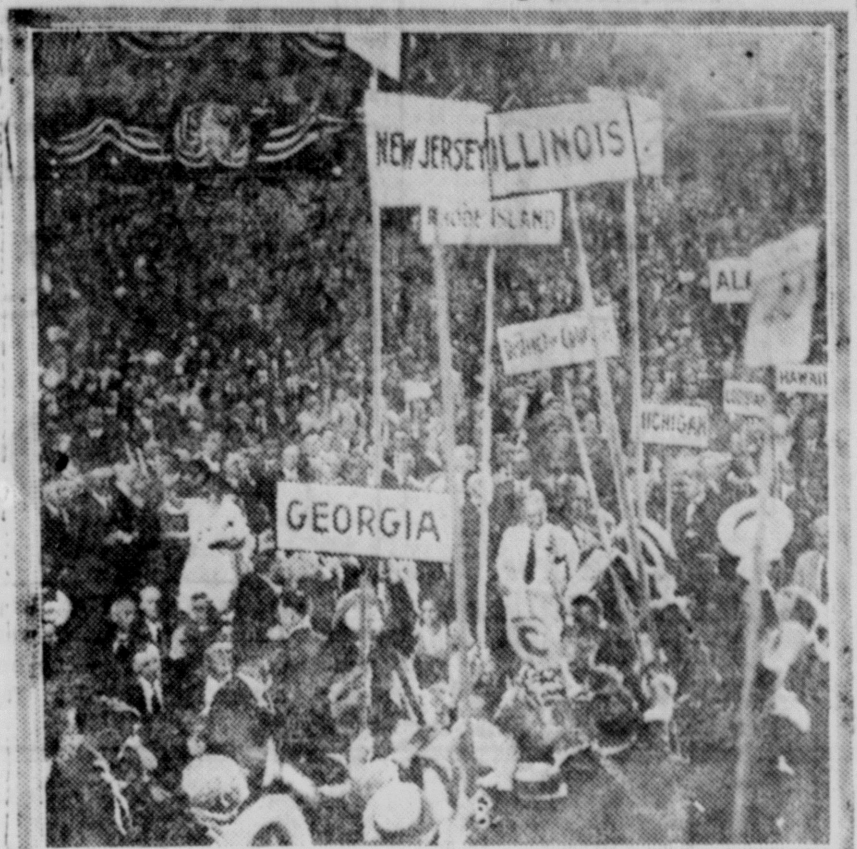

The same tree is occupied the season that follows by the same colony, new nests are constructed on top of the old ones. Occasionally the whole mass of nests will come crashing down amid much squeaking. Sometimes it is the tree that collapses through the weight of so many homes and their inmates.

Cigarettes Point Way

Mexicans working in a lead mine in Chihuahua have found a new use for cigarettes. The mine consists of a series of caves along the sides and bottoms of which lead and silver ore in paying quantities is found. The miners have noticed that smoke from their cigarettes is sucked through cracks in the rocks at certain points. By drilling in the wake of the smoke they break through into another cave.

An apparatus has been perfected which automatically registers the amount of salt in sea water, thus making possible more accurate knowledge of the paths of ocean currents. It is also expected that it will aid in detecting the approach of icebergs. It is an electrical device developed by the United States bureau of standards.

Girls of Yesterday and Today

By CLARA DELAFIELD

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"AUNT PRIS, I'm engaged!"

Elsie ran into her aunt's dainty, old-fashioned room, and hugged her. Aunt Pris lived at the other end of the town, and it was seldom that she saw her favorite niece.

"Well, this is news, my dear," said her aunt. "Who is the fortunate young man?"

"Harry Lewis, auntie."

"I know whom you mean," said Aunt Pris in her precise way. "I think it will be a very good match for both of you."

"And mother wants you to come to dinner on Wednesday and meet him," Elsie continued.

"I shall be very pleased to, my dear. When are you to be married?"

"Oh, I don't know, auntie. If we don't get tired of each other, in two or three months, I suppose."

"Tired of each other? Elsie, dear, are you sure that you are approaching such an important event in the proper spirit? Have you reflected that it is the most important event in your lives and—"

"Oh, Aunt Pris, what a dear you are!" exclaimed Elsie, kissing her. "That stuff's all out of date. It went out with horsehair sofas, auntie."

Aunt Pris sighed. She could not understand the modern young woman at all. And she was genuinely fond of Elsie.

In her day, as soon as a girl was asked in marriage she immediately put off her girlish ways and prepared for the grim business of life. And there was never any idea of breaking an engagement. And here was Elsie, saying "if we don't get tired of each other."

She had never met Harry, though she knew his people, and she looked forward to the dinner with interest and also anxiety. And the demeanor of the young people did not relieve this.

"Hello, auntie! This is Harry. Harry, old bean, shake with auntie!" exclaimed Elsie. "This is the fortunate party, aunt. How many petting parties have you been attending since Saturday, Harry?"

"Elsie!" exclaimed her aunt with faint dismay.

"Didn't they have them in your day, auntie? Harry's some sport among the girls, I tell you! Harry, what's that yarn about you and that pretty stenographer of yours? Did you or didn't you go off to Clifton beach for the week-end together?"

Aunt Pris gasped with horror. Fortunately her sister, Elsie's mother, appeared just then to divert affairs, but she sat shocked and dismayed all through the dinner. She broached the subject to her sister in the drawing room afterward.

"Edith, I—don't seem to understand," she said pathetically. "Are you sure they understand the serious nature of an engagement?"

"Oh, they seem pretty well attached to each other," answered Elsie's mother. "We must hope for the best." She sighed. "Girls are so shockingly irresponsible nowadays," she said.

But Aunt Pris had never spent such an unhappy evening before. Why, the things they talked about had only been whispered among old married women in her day!

Then—later, when she was getting ready to leave, she found herself an unwilling eavesdropper outside the back room.

"Harry it was a shame teasing poor Aunt Pris in that way," came Elsie's voice. "I don't believe she'll ever get over it."

"I wasn't sure how to take it myself," said Harry. "Of course you didn't mean that about the petting parties, did you?"

"Oh, Harry, if I believed it possible of you I think I'd die!"

"Nor that about Clifton beach?"

"Harry, did you think I meant that?"

"No, I was sure you didn't, but it kind of hurt me, because you know you're—whispers."

"Oh, Harry, are you sure you?"—whispers.

"Why, darling, how could you ever doubt that? I love you to distraction."

The sound of a kiss followed. Aunt Pris, who had stood as if rooted to the spot, withdrew precipitately.

"I guess the world's running along pretty much the way it used to when I was a girl," she said to herself. She smiled. "Why, come to think of it, how shocked mother was when Jim asked me to go for a ride in a hansom with him the week before we were married. And he was only teasing her."

The iron pots of Gondricourt

Just after daybreak a traveler along the narrow byways of a small French village can see the housewife beginning her day. Through the open doorway her fireplace glows like a forge. A heavy iron pot, which she has filled with water from the town pump, is lifted and swung upon the crane. At the other end of the village, perhaps, runs the little stream where she washes her family's clothes upon the rocks.

Throughout the village life of much of Europe, such pictures are multiplied by thousands. Quaint, to be sure, but what grinding and incessant toil these primitive household arrangements mean!

In contrast to this, even the remote districts of America boast comfort unknown to the rural life of other countries. Conveniences are found that could not be duplicated in any save the wealthiest city homes of foreign nations.

Adequate heating systems, the farm lighting plant, the washing machine, the vacuum cleaner, the telephone, and numberless labor-saving devices have lifted modern life in America to unprecedented levels of comfort and ease.

To a large measure this has been due to advertising. Advertising has familiarized all of us with new inventions. Advertising has made possible the wide distribution of new products. By increasing sales, advertising has reduced the price of modern household utilities to the reach of the modest purse.

Dorothy Was Sunshine to Them

By ELLA SAUNDERS

"O H, MOTHER, summer's come," exclaimed Dorothy, as she put on her hat to go into the village. "Isn't it good to be alive in summer-time!"

"When you're young you feel that way," her mother answered.

"I bet everybody in the place is feeling that way," answered Dorothy.

Old Saylor, the village money-lender, was talking with Ransom at the gate of his little garden.

"I'm only asking for a three months' extension," pleaded Ransom. "The wife's been sick, and I'll lose everything if you foreclose. Give me three months and I swear I'll pay you."

"Words don't make money," growled Saylor. "I've heard those tales before."

"Good-morning, Mr. Saylor!" called Dorothy as she passed. "Doesn't it make you feel good to be alive this fine weather?"

"I dunno," growled old Saylor, as if the idea was a wholly new one to him.

"Oh, it's just fine, and everybody looks so happy after the cold spring," Dorothy sang out. "I tell you, Mr. Saylor, life's one grand sweet song these summer days."

She was gone tripping down the road, and the two men looked after her.

"Just three months more, Mr. Saylor—" pleaded Ransom. "I'll have that money for sure."

"Well, come inside and we'll talk it over," Saylor growled.

Further along the street John Benson was starting for the city. His wife had accompanied him to the gate.

"John, for heaven's sake think it over!" she was pleading tearfully. "We haven't got along well together, I know, and it's been mostly my fault. But I'll try. Give me another chance. We can learn to rub together—"

John Benson looked at her implacably. God, how tired he was of the woman's nagging and scolding! Their quarrel that morning had culminated in the open talk of separation.

"Good-morning, folks!" Dorothy sang out. "Doesn't it make you feel just happy to be alive this beautiful morning?"

They looked at her aghast; neither of them had thought of the morning.

"How's the garden coming on, Mrs. Benson? Are you going in for sweet-peas this year? I guess you and Mr. Ransom will have a great time enjoying your flowers."

She tripped on her way. They stood at the gate, staring after her. John Benson turned to his wife. "Polly," he began, with a softened expression on his face.

She put her arms round his neck. "We mustn't think of parting. We must try again, dear," she whispered.

They kissed, and she went happily down the street. Round the corner was the shop of old Jenks, the crabbed old carpenter. As Dorothy drew near she saw that the old man had a wriggling boy by the collar—his little grandson, Johnny.

"I'll learn ye to play hookey!" he was snarling.

"Oh, Mr. Jenks, whatever is the matter?" cried Dorothy, coming to a stop before the old man's door. "You're not going to beat Johnny, are you?"

"I'm going to learn him not to play hookey no more, and I guess that ain't nothing better nor a strap," snarled old Jenks. "Fishing with a pin in the water company's reservoir all yesterday, he was, when we thought he was in school."

"Why, Mr. Jenks!" She caught at the strap in the old man's hand. "Look, Mr. Jenks, what a fine day it is. Summer's here at last. Didn't you ever play hookey and go fishing on days like this, when you were a kid?"

Gradually a reminiscent smile stole over the old man's face. "Wal, I reckon boys ain't much different now to what they was in my days," he muttered. "I was kinder forgetting. You run away, Johnny, and don't you play hookey agen, or I'll whale the life out of you!" he said.

Johnny dived to freedom. With a nod and a smile Dorothy continued on her way.

"I guess most everybody's glad to be alive on a fine morning like this," she soliloquized.

Immense Birds' Nests

A little bird no bigger than a canary builds a nest as big as a house, says London Tit-Bits. This is in South Africa, where birds are very sociable. They live in large colonies, the members of which all build in the same tree.

Each couple contrives a nest of mud, joining its walls to those of its neighbor. As the colonies consist of several thousands of birds, the feathered town soon reaches very respectable proportions.

The same tree is occupied the season that follows by the same colony, new nests are constructed on top of the old ones. Occasionally the whole mass of nests will come crashing down amid much squeaking. Sometimes it is the tree that collapses through the weight of so many homes and their inmates.

Cigarettes Point Way

Mexicans working in a lead mine in Chihuahua have found a new use for cigarettes. The mine consists of a series of caves along the sides and bottoms of which lead and silver ore in paying quantities is found. The miners have noticed that smoke from their cigarettes is sucked through cracks in the rocks at certain points. By drilling in the wake of the smoke they break through into another cave.

An apparatus has been perfected which automatically registers the amount of salt in sea water, thus making possible more accurate knowledge of the paths of ocean currents. Girls of Yesterday and Today

"AUNT PRIS, I'm engaged!" Elsie ran into her aunt's dainty, old-fashioned room, and hugged her. Aunt Pris lived at the other end of the town, and it was seldom that she saw her favorite niece.

"Well, this is news, my dear," said her aunt. "Who is the fortunate young man?"

"Harry Lewis, auntie."

"I know whom you mean," said Aunt Pris in her precise way. "I think it will be a very good match for both of you."

"And mother wants you to come to dinner on Wednesday and meet him," Elsie continued.

"I shall be very pleased to, my dear. When are you to be married?"

"Oh, I don't know, auntie. If we don't get tired of each other, in two or three months, I suppose."

"Tired of each other? Elsie, dear, are you sure that you are approaching such an important event in the proper spirit? Have you reflected that it is the most important event in your lives and—"

"Oh, Aunt Pris, what a dear you are!" exclaimed Elsie, kissing her. "That stuff's all out of date. It went out with horsehair sofas, auntie."

Aunt Pris sighed. She could not understand the modern young woman at all. And she was genuinely fond of Elsie.

In her day, as soon as a girl was asked in marriage she immediately put off her girlish ways and prepared for the grim business of life. And there was never any idea of breaking an engagement. And here was Elsie, saying "if we don't get tired of each other."

She had never met Harry, though she knew his people, and she looked forward to the dinner with interest and also anxiety. And the demeanor of the young people did not relieve this.

"Hello, auntie! This is Harry. Harry, old bean, shake with auntie!" exclaimed Elsie. "This is the fortunate party, aunt. How many petting parties have you been attending since Saturday, Harry?"

"Elsie!" exclaimed her aunt with faint dismay. "Didn't they have them in your day, auntie? Harry's some sport among the girls, I tell you! Harry, what's that yarn about you and that pretty stenographer of yours? Did you or didn't you go off to Clifton beach for the week-end together?"

Aunt Pris gasped with horror. Fortunately her sister, Elsie's mother, appeared just then to divert affairs, but she sat shocked and dismayed all through the dinner. She broached the subject to her sister in the drawing room afterward.

"Edith, I—I don't seem to understand," she said pathetically. "Are you sure they understand the serious nature of an engagement?"

"Oh, they seem pretty well attached to each other," answered Elsie's mother. "We must hope for the best." She sighed. "Girls are so shockingly irresponsible nowadays," she said.

But Aunt Pris had never spent such an unhappy evening before. Why, the things they talked about had only been whispered among old married women in her day!

Then—later, when she was getting ready to leave, she found herself an unwilling eavesdropper outside the back room.

"Harry it was a shame teasing poor Aunt Pris in that way," came Elsie's voice. "I don't believe she'll ever get over it."

"I wasn't sure how to take it myself," said Harry. "Of course you didn't mean that about the petting parties, did you?"

BAR PRESIDENT SOUNDS WARNING TO THE NATION

SAYS ENCROACHMENTS OF CONGRESS ARE A REAL MENACE

COST OF LEGISLATION IS INCREASING VERY RAPIDLY

(By United Press)
Philadelphia, July 8.—The constitution of the United States is the favorite topic of the president of the America Bar Association of Dallas, Texas. At today's opening session of the association, in the birthplace of the United States, Saner made the constitution the leading feature of his annual address to the association.

After giving the history of the United States constitution and its amendments, Saner said: "There are now pending in Congress nearly 100 proposals to amend the constitution, practically all of them conceived, fostered and urged by highly organized bureaus or associations; virtually all of them strike at the fundamental principles of our government; and many of them are fostered by the selfish interests of minority factions for purposes purely selfish. Some of these amendments propose to restrict the power of the supreme court, some to facilitate the amending of the constitution itself, and most of them propose to relegate to the national government the control of affairs originally vested in the states. The insistent demand of this paternalistic movement is for creating new bureaus and departments and offices vastly increasing the number of federal employees, with a relative increase in the cost of government, thus destroying the checks and balances as originally established.

Congress Encroaching

"One of the just causes of complaint against the tyranny of King George as set forth in the Declaration of Independence was: 'He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.' Since that same condition exists today, have we not the same right, yea the same duty, to object? And what are the facts. In the federal government alone, there are more than 750,000 employees. There are more than 3,400,000 people employed by national, state and municipal governments, so that every 12 workers in the United States support one government employee! In every city in the land whole buildings are occupied by federal bureaus and departments, many of whose agents and servants seemingly have no other duty than to incessantly write and send out letters and pamphlets and forms and books and reports, many of which are as promptly consigned to the waste basket. Thousands upon thousands of employees are employed in no sufficiently useful occupation—mere parasites upon the body politic.

"And are the people blameless for these conditions? Is it not true that there is a spirit abroad in the land, which prompts no man to do for himself what he can get the government to do for him? So that thus through paternalistic legislation, we hear the faint cry of maternalistic bureaus and other bureaus which are insidiously destroying our resourcefulness, our self-efficiency and our very independence itself. We first seek to have the government do everything for us and then we blame the government for everything that does not go to suit us.

The People Must Pay

"But some one asks, why do for ourselves what the government will do for us for nothing? The law of compensation is inexorable and immutable and we, the people, must pay. According to the last census report, the national debt, not including state and municipal debts, in 1922 was nearly $23,000,000,000 or over $210 for each person in the whole country, representing a per capita increase of approximately 400 per cent in a decade for federal taxes alone. It is estimated that every man, woman and child in the United States pays for taxes approximately 10 cents out of every dollar earned, or an annual average tax of $91.

"The 59th Congress passed 6,750 laws, and in 1915 the state adopted 15,033 laws, but not to speak of municipal enactments and the rulings of the various bureaus and commissions and departments. And yet the citizen is presumed to know all the law. Is it strange that, realizing the futility of such a presumption, he begins to look lightly upon all laws?

"Yet there is now before Congress

a proposed amendment to the Constitution that will further burden that body with the additional duty of passing upon the constitutionality of its own acts!

"Aside from the obvious necessity to take away, rather than add to the duties of an already overworked Congress, there is yet another reason why such proposals as this should be discouraged, and that is that among other things it would revolutionize our form of government. It would overcome the balance between the legislative, executive and judicial departments. It would demolish the states, and destroy the constitution itself! Our government would thereupon degenerate into a legislative despotism or tyranny with unlimited power. It would no longer be a government of laws, but a government of men. It would destroy the guarantees contained in the bill of rights, and could, with equal impunity, take away from the citizens every right guaranteed to him by the law of the land. If the tendencies of the times are not checked, if a halt is not called, the Congress would, if unrestrained by the supreme court, speedily wipe out state lines and our government would degenerate into a paternal, sumptuary bureaucracy, governing, directing and controlling every activity of its citizens, even to the method and manner of their living.

"Such has been the tragic fate of nations since history began. You will recall, the English parliament once extended its life from three to seven years. The Congress could likewise perpetuate its existence. It could, by its control of the purse, subject the executive to its despotic sway. It could destroy the independence of the judiciary and make that department the servant to its will alone. It would make senators and representatives not mere legislators, but judges of the law and of the rights of the citizens as well, from whose judgment there could be no appeal. And then the people, as Anglo-Saxon peoples ever and always have, would rise in their might and demand another charter for the return of freedom and liberty and the rights of men, vouchsafed them in the Constitution."

BIDS CALLED ON TRUNK HIGHWAYS

SEVEN MAIN ARTERIES TO BE IMPROVED THIS SEASON

Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, this week called for bids July 29 on seven state trunk route improvement projects estimated to cost more than $450,000. The list includes 75 miles of grading, 6 of paving, 30 of guard rail and two bridges, located on different sections of the 7,000-mile trunk highway system. The improvements are to be paid for with motor vehicle tax funds and federal highway aid, but are made possible this year by county reimbursement bond issues.

The jobs and locations follow:

T. H. No. 3—Sauk Centre-Freeport, 15 m. grading, 3 m. paving at Sauk Centre and 3 m. at Melrose, estimated cost, $220,000.

T. H. No. 5—Shakopee-Jordan, 11½ m. grading at $60,000.

T. H. No. 5—Jordan southward, 16 m. grading at $140,000.

T. H. No. 6—Wheaton northward, 15 m. grading and bridge at $87,300.

T. H. No. 6—Wolverton northward 12½ m. grading at $68,400.

T. H. No. 8—4½ m. west of Crookston, bridge at $2,000.

T. H. No. 67—Echo northward, 4 m. grading at $15,000.

On different routes—30 m. guard rail at $30,000.

The T. H. No. 5 proposal for 7½ miles of grading north from LeSueur was withdrawn and will be contracted later, officials said.

Commissioner Babcock called attention to the fact that practically all of the work for which bonds are being issued is of a character which will last at least twenty years and much of it longer—far outliving the bonds. Sinking fund provisions are being made to take up the bonds at maturity, he added, and all will be paid with interest from motor vehicle tax receipts.

Without bond issues, he continued, most of the improvements would have to wait. Under the "pay-as-you-use" policy, however, present taxpayers are to receive fairer value for their money than otherwise would be possible. The commissioner repeated that the bond plan reduces the cost of financing highway improvements because state bonds draw interest at a lower rate than that the state collects on the funds it loans.

"Such has been the tragic fate of nations since history began. You will recall, the English parliament once extended its life from three to seven years. The Congress could likewise perpetuate its existence. It could, by its control of the purse, subject the executive to its despotic sway. It could destroy the independence of the judiciary and make that department the servant to its will alone. It would make senators and representatives not mere legislators, but judges of the law and of the rights of the citizens as well, from whose judgment there could be no appeal. And then the people, as Anglo-Saxon peoples ever and always have, would rise in their might and demand another charter for the return of freedom and liberty and the rights of men, vouchsafed them in the Constitution."

BIDS CALLED ON TRUNK HIGHWAYS

SEVEN MAIN ARTERIES TO BE IMPROVED THIS SEASON

Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, this week called for bids July 29 on seven state trunk route improvement projects estimated to cost more than $450,000. The list includes 75 miles of grading, 6 of paving, 30 of guard rail and two bridges, located on different sections of the 7,000-mile trunk highway system. The improvements are to be paid for with motor vehicle tax funds and federal highway aid, but are made possible this year by county reimbursement bond issues.

The jobs and locations follow:

T. H. No. 3—Sauk Centre-Freeport, 15 m. grading, 3 m. paving at Sauk Centre and 3 m. at Melrose, estimated cost, $220,000.

T. H. No. 5—Shakopee-Jordan, 11½ m. grading at $60,000.

T. H. No. 5—Jordan southward, 16 m. grading at $140,000.

T. H. No. 6—Wheaton northward, 15 m. grading and bridge at $87,300.

T. H. No. 6—Wolverton northward 12½ m. grading at $68,400.

T. H. No. 8—4½ m. west of Crookston, bridge at $2,000.

T. H. No. 67—Echo northward, 4 m. grading at $15,000.

On different routes—30 m. guard rail at $30,000.

The T. H. No. 5 proposal for 7½ miles of grading north from LeSueur was withdrawn and will be contracted later, officials said.

Commissioner Babcock called attention to the fact that practically all of the work for which bonds are being issued is of a character which will last at least twenty years and much of it longer—far outliving the bonds. Sinking fund provisions are being made to take up the bonds at maturity, he added, and all will be paid with interest from motor vehicle tax receipts.

Without bond issues, he continued, most of the improvements would have to wait. Under the "pay-as-you-use" policy, however, present taxpayers are to receive fairer value for their money than otherwise would be possible. The commissioner repeated that the bond plan reduces the cost of financing highway improvements because state bonds draw interest at a lower rate than that the state collects on the funds it loans.

on Cuyuna Range

Nearly 10,000 persons attended 16 demonstrations given in 13 northern Minnesota counties by a crew operating the Minnesota Special, a university land clearing, crops and livestock feeding train, between the dates of June 9 and July 4. The largest attendance was at Menasha in Wadena county when 1,000 persons witnessed the demonstration. Seven hundred persons turned out for land clearing day at Quamba in Kanabec county.

The university men and their co-operators demonstrated the use of war explosives, stump pullers, breaking plows and tractors. The object of each demonstration was to clear the land of stumps and stones, plow and otherwise make it ready for planting. An average of about two acres was cleared at each of the 16 stops.

Co-operating companies which had official representatives on the train were the Deere & Webber company, Ford Motor company, J. L. Case Threshing company, Oliver Plow company, and the Schurmeier-Whitney company. Concerns furnishing equipment but sending no representatives were the Anderson Wagon company of St. Paul and the Kohler company of Kohler, Wis., which furnished the lighting system.

General interest was taken in the exhibits displayed in a big baggage car. Land clearing, livestock and crop improvement, farm buildings and forestry were all featured in the exhibits. Probably the model of a home made silo, in building which by-products of land clearing can often be utilized to advantage, was given the most attention and study. The evening meetings for the discussion of land clearing and general farming topics were attended by audiences averaging 100 persons.

While the train was operated under university auspices, all the chief items of expenses were paid by the railroads and co-operating companies. The railway companies furnished the cars and hauled them from point to point without charge. Splendid co-operation was given by each company.

The train was in general charge of A. J. Schwantes, land clearing specialist of the university. Assisting him from time to time were Prof. William Boss, chief of the university division of agricultural engineering, and M. J. Thompson of the Duluth station.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS AT BAND CONCERT

The Campfire Girls of the Methodist church will sell ice cream at the band concert on Wednesday evening.

This group is the first of the girls organizations in the city, and has asked nothing from the public. They need funds with which to carry on their summer camp this season, and the stand on Wednesday night will do much toward making this camp possible.

The girls will use the Boy Scout camp, when the Scouts have finished their season, and great plans are being made for the outing. They hope that those attending the band concert will bring healthy appetites with them, and patronize the stand liberally.

The funds so raised will make up a common purse, that it may be possible for every member of the local organization to attend the camp, even should financial circumstances at home forbid any to go.

Lake Region

(Minneapolis Journal)
Minnesota's cash and carry crop, the tourist industry, is pointing to full growth, with indications pointing to the best season in the history of the state, Perry S. Williams, executive secretary of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association, said today on his return from a week-end trip to Nisswa and resorts in the Gull lake region.

"The last week has witnessed a spurt in the influx of tourists," Mr. Williams said. "The end of the cold spell and the advent of warm weather with the approach of the Fourth of July resulted in a heavy movement of tourist travel from surrounding states."

"Whole colonies of out of state people are being established around the lakes in the region I visited. There was a colony of Omaha people, another of Kansas City and one of St. Louis already established. These result from residents of these cities returning with their friends."

The Civic and Commerce association's advertising program, which is carrying the call of Minnesota's vacation land to millions in the middle-west, is showing results, Mr. Williams declared.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS AT BAND CONCERT

The Campfire Girls of the Methodist church will sell ice cream at the band concert on Wednesday evening.

This group is the first of the girls organizations in the city, and has asked nothing from the public. They need funds with which to carry on their summer camp this season, and the stand on Wednesday night will do much toward making this camp possible.

The girls will use the Boy Scout camp, when the Scouts have finished their season, and great plans are being made for the outing. They hope that those attending the band concert will bring healthy appetites with them, and patronize the stand liberally.

The funds so raised will make up a common purse, that it may be possible for every member of the local organization to attend the camp, even should financial circumstances at home forbid any to go.

TOURIST CROP BEST IN YEARS

Minnesota "Cash and Carry" Summer
Visitors Come In Rush From

GREAT MANY AT GULL LAKE

Says Perry S. Williams of Minneapolis Association Visits Brainerd Lake Region

(Minneapolis Journal)
Minnesota's cash and carry crop, the tourist industry, is pointing to full growth, with indications pointing to the best season in the history of the state, Perry S. Williams, executive secretary of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association, said today on his return from a week-end trip to Nisswa and resorts in the Gull lake region.

"The last week has witnessed a spurt in the influx of tourists," Mr. Williams said. "The end of the cold spell and the advent of warm weather with the approach of the Fourth of July resulted in a heavy movement of tourist travel from surrounding states."

"Whole colonies of out of state people are being established around the lakes in the region I visited. There was a colony of Omaha people, another of Kansas City and one of St. Louis already established. These result from residents of these cities returning with their friends."

The Civic and Commerce association's advertising program, which is carrying the call of Minnesota's vacation land to millions in the middle-west, is showing results, Mr. Williams declared.

YALE HAS BIGGEST YEAR IN SPORTS

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 8.—The grandeur that was Yale's on diamond, field and track in the old days came back this year. The college season, which closed last month, found Eli grads and undergrads checking up gleefully an unprecedented list of signal victories over the foe from Cambridge, Jawn Harvard.

Yale licked Harvard in football, in baseball, on the track and more recently on the Thames. In hockey, tennis and basketball, the Blue also triumphed over their traditional rivals. As this goes to press, returns from the post-season checker matches are not all in, so it may not have been a clean sweep for Yale, but it was close to it.

The Eli athletes enjoyed a good year against Princeton as well, although the Tigers won the baseball and basketball contests, biting the dust before triumphant Blue hosts in football, rowing and track.

* * * * *

There was a "Big Four" at New Haven this year—Bill Mallory, Charlie O'Hearn, Ducky Pond and Al Lindley. Two of these brawny sons of Eli graduated, but Lindley and Pond, captains-elect of baseball and crew, will be back to bother Princeton and Harvard in 1924-25.

The members of this "Big Four" scored heavily against Harvard and Princeton in a variety of athletic ways. Tad Jones started to build his 1923 eleven around the triple-threat man—O'Hearn. Charlie was put out of the game for the season by injuries sustained in the early fall. Captain Bill Mallory stepped into the breach and found himself a kicker. His two placement boots from ankle-deep water against Harvard will long be remembered in Yale football annals.

Ducky Pond was a football star, too, an off-stackle plunger of extraordinary ability. He was a line-crusher, the man who bruised and battered the defense in the first half of Yale games so that the going was easy for the nimble-footed Mal Stevens in the second half. Ducky splashed his way to a touchdown against Harvard in the stadium at Cambridge, first Yale man since Coy to do so.

During the winter, Charley O'Hearn captained the hockey team. His football injuries kept him out early in the season, but once he got going, there was no stopping him. His brilliant playing accounted for Yale winning the intercollegiate championship.

HURLEY'S SEALS
DEFEAT PIRATES

For the second time this season the Pirates went down to defeat before the onslaughts of Hurley's Seals, to the tune of 6 to 3. The game was well played, with pitching honors evenly divided between Molstad and Anderson. Whatever breaks there were, were with the Seals, who also contributed some heavy stick work. T. Stallman, with a home run on the first ball, and W. Anderson, who pounded out a two bagger and a three bagger, wielded the heavy bludgeons. Carlson of the Pirates boosted his average somewhat with a perfect day at bat, getting three hits in the same number of trips to the plate. Whitlock and Gaskill, with two hits each, also batted 1000.

Tonight the Y. M. C. A. and Pirates play a postponed game at the Sixth Street grounds. The Tigers play the B. A. C. team at the Koering grounds. The B. A. C. team is taking the place of the N. P. Shop team and will finish the schedule.

FOR AMERICA
AT PARIS MEETHUBBARD, MICHIGAN COLORED
STAR, LEADS IN BROAD
JUMPGOURDIN, ALSO NEGRO, HARVARD
MAN, WINS SECOND PLACE

By Henry L. Farrell

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Colombes Stadium, Paris, July 8.—De Hart Hubbard, colored star from the University of Michigan, won the broad jump in the Olympic field and track contest this afternoon with a leap of 7.445 meters.

Right on the heels of Hubbard's victory, which sent the American flag up the pole above the scoreboard and started the band playing the Star Spangled Banner, Bud Houser of the University of California won the shot put for the United States. This meant another ten points and another flag raising.

Hubbard's leap was translated as 24 feet 6 inches.

Ned Gourdin, former Harvard star, also a negro, was second, Hansen of Norway was third, Tunlos of Finland fourth, Wilhelm of France fifth, and McIntosh of England sixth.

D. G. A. Lowe, England, won the 800-meter event with the United States taking third, fifth, and sixth places. Lowe's time was 52 2-5 seconds. S. C. Enck, Penn State, won four points for the United States by finishing third. Marsh, Switzerland, won second, and Stallard, England, fourth, and William B. Richardson, Leland Stanford University, and Audry Dodge of Oregon Agricultural College, fifth and sixth respectively for the United States.

OFFICIAL STANDINGS OF COUNTRIES REPRESENTED

Colombes Stadium, Paris, July 8.—The United States increased its lead over Finland and the field by winning the first two places with a liberal scattering of others in the Olympic track and field games today. England captured a first in the only other final event today.

The official standing at the end of the day was: United States, 98; Finland, 54; England, 28½; Sweden, 14½; France, 9½; Hungary, 7½; Switzerland, 5; Norway, 4; New Zealand, 4.

Pirates to Use Veteran

Pitcher Adams as Coach

Babe Adams, veteran mound artist of the Pirates, will not be the dependable pitcher this year as heretofore, according to the rumors in baseball circles.

The Babe has visited "Bonesetter" Reese, who has tried to repair the "old souper" and bring the Pirates' "grand old man" back into shape.

According to reports the arm failed to respond to treatment, and now Manager McKechnie is not counting on Adams to do more than coach the young pitchers and fill in occasionally in a pinch.

Too Many New Balls,
Claims Ban Johnson

Home-run hitters in the American league this season are going to have to earn their four-base clouts, President Ban Johnson says.

An epidemic of home runs during the last season was due to the large number of new balls thrown into the games, President Johnson claims. He has instructed umpires to use more judgment in tossing out the spheres, in order that not too many of the snappy new variety get served to batters.

STAPLES BLANKS
N. P. SHOP TEAM

Despite the excellent pitching of Glen Jones who struck out nine men in 5 innings, Staples goose-egged the N. P. Shop team with the score of 7 to 0. Although the shop boys batted the ball practically every time they came to bat the Staples defense proved impenetrable and smothered everything that came their way. Staples made four runs in the first inning all on errors. Bowerman in the right field missed two easy flies—never saw them. Collett and Molstad each let a high one pass them in the first inning that helped Staples to score. Johnson and H. Fielder in the center and left field for Staples caught every one of the nine long drives coming their way.

The Score

Staples	7	8	0

Fielder who pitched for Staples struck out 5 men and walked 3. Jones for Brainerd fanned 9 men in five innings and walked 2; Stevens fanned 4 men in three innings. Two base hits: Collett and Uddenberg for Brainerd, S. Jones for Staples. Three base hit, S. Jones, and home run for Schommel, both Staples. Umpires Vanni and Morrison. Time of game 2 hours.

Only One Solar System

No other system resembling our solar system is known to exist. However, there are many double, some triple, and some quadruple stars; but unless the smaller members of such systems are more comparable in size to the sun than to Jupiter, we have no means of knowing of their existence. The smallest star whose mass is known with fair accuracy seems to be at least one-eighth as heavy as the sun, while Jupiter is less than a thousandth as heavy as the sun.

Best Wood for Ships

Teakwood is coming into wider use in modern shipbuilding, particularly in such places as decks and pilot houses, which are constantly exposed to sea and weather. Teakwood does not warp and worms do not eat it. Nature has endowed this wood with a preservative oil which keeps out water and is either offensive or poisonous to the destructive teredo.

Pirates to Use Veteran

Babe Adams, veteran mound artist of the Pirates, will not be the dependable pitcher this year as heretofore, according to the rumors in baseball circles.

The Babe has visited "Bonesetter" Reese, who has tried to repair the "old souper" and bring the Pirates' "grand old man" back into shape.

According to reports the arm failed to respond to treatment, and now Manager McKechnie is not counting on Adams to do more than coach the young pitchers and fill in occasionally in a pinch.

Too Many New Balls,
Claims Ban Johnson

Home-run hitters in the American league this season are going to have to earn their four-base clouts, President Ban Johnson says.

An epidemic of home runs during the last season was due to the large number of new balls thrown into the games, President Johnson claims. He has instructed umpires to use more judgment in tossing out the spheres, in order that not too many of the snappy new variety get served to batters.

STAPLES BLANKS
N. P. SHOP TEAM

Despite the excellent pitching of Glen Jones who struck out nine men in 5 innings, Staples goose-egged the N. P. Shop team with the score of 7 to 0. Although the shop boys batted the ball practically every time they came to bat the Staples defense proved impenetrable and smothered everything that came their way. Staples made four runs in the first inning all on errors. Bowerman in the right field missed two easy flies—never saw them. Collett and Molstad each let a high one pass them in the first inning that helped Staples to score. Johnson and H. Fielder in the center and left field for Staples caught every one of the nine long drives coming their way.

The Score

Staples	7	8	0
E. Fielder who pitched for Staples struck out 5 men and walked 3. Jones for Brainerd fanned 9 men in five innings and walked 2; Stevens fanned 4 men in three innings. Two base hits: Collett and Uddenberg for Brainerd; S. Jones for Staples. Three base hit, S. Jones, and home run for Schemmel, both Staples. Umpires Vanni and Morrison. Time of game 2 hours.

Only One Solar System

No other system resembling our solar system is known to exist. However, there are many double, some triple, and some quadruple stars; but unless the smaller members of such systems are more comparable in size to the sun than to Jupiter, we have no means of knowing of their existence. The smallest star whose mass is known with fair accuracy seems to be at least one-eighth as heavy as the sun, while Jupiter is less than a thousandth as heavy as the sun.

Best Wood for Ships

Teakwood is coming into wider use in modern shipbuilding, particularly in such places as decks and pilot houses, which are constantly exposed to sea and weather. Teakwood does not warp and worms do not eat it. Nature has endowed this wood with a preservative oil which keeps out water and is either offensive or poisonous to the destructive tereido.

English Critic's Error

"Gammer Gurton's Needle," a comedy by Bishop St. John, printed in 1575, was thought for some time to be the first English comedy, owing to an English critic's error as to the date of its publication.
